

APPLETON STUDENTS ENJOY GOOD HEALTH, CHEST CLINIC SHOWS

Only One Case of Tuberculosis Found in Nearly 300 Examinations Made

One case of tuberculosis and seven cases of heart disease were found among local high school students in 293 examinations of students at the free chest clinic from April 18 to 21 by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, according to an announcement received Monday from the association. The clinic was financed jointly by the health committee of Appleton Women's club and the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, funds of both organizations having been raised through the annual sale of penny Christmas seals.

One student probably will enter a summer camp, upon the recommendation of the physicians at the clinic. Three students examined were found to have a pulmonary infection, which was non-tubercular and ten students had had intimate contacts with tubercular persons. Non-tubercular findings of the clinic showed 31 students had neglected teeth, while 4 had swollen tonsils. Suppurative diseased tonsils were found in 41 students and diseased tonsils in 12 students. Glandular conditions were found in 52 students and 142 goiters were found, however 139 of these were child goiters.

Thirty-two students were found to be at least 10 per cent underweight and 63 were referred to their family physicians for further advice or for treatment. Further tests and examinations were advised for some of the students and periodic examinations were urged for those persons who had lowered resistance as the result of pulmonary infection, underweight or diseased tonsils.

Sixty-eight students were apparently in normal health. Miss Dorothy Durbin, of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association in commenting on the clinic said, "It is rare that we find such a splendid group as we did in Appleton. Not only were the students a fine bunch physically, but I want to say for the entire clinic crew that we were more than impressed with the polite manners of all the students."

The clinic crew which visited Appleton was made up of Dr. T. L. Harrington of the clinic department of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Dr. Harold Coon of the River Pines Sanatorium of Stevens Point, Dr. M. T. T. of the Michigan Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Dr. C. D. Boyd of the Riverview Sanatorium, Miss Dorothy Durbin, social service worker from the clinic department of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association.

Local persons who assisted in the clinic work were H. H. Helbig, J. Raymond Walsh, Miss Catherine Fox, Miss Marie Klein, county nurse; Miss Mary Gibson and Miss Jean Butler, school nurses; Miss Florence Whipple, city nurse and members of the health department of the Appleton Women's club, Mrs. C. O. Gochnauer, Mrs. Charles Green, Mrs. Charles Reinick, Mrs. A. G. Meating, Miss Rose Deherty, Mrs. Nemachee Zuehlke and Mrs. William Nemachee, department chairman.

Children of pre-school age are examined by members of the county medical society which donate their services to the baby clinic department of the Women's club.

COUNTY PAYS $34,471 MOTHERS' PENSIONS

Only Four Counties in State Pay More Than Outagamie, Report Shows

Madison—(P)—In 1927 Wisconsin spent, under the Mothers' Pension Law, $1,408,147.29 for the aid of dependent children, according to the state board of control. This amount was spent by the counties of the state, the state's appropriation of $30,000 not being sufficient to reimburse the counties one-third of the amount they spent, as contemplated by law.

Outagamie was the first state to enact a law granting aid to families of dependent children in order that the home might be maintained. In the 15 years from 1912 to 1927 the state spent a total of $9,525,471.87, caring for 44,631 with 122,811 children.

In 1927 the average family allowance was $20.14 per month and the average allowance per child amounted to $7.76 per month. Based on the 1920 census, approximately 10 out of every thousand families were receiving aid, and approximately 20 out of every thousand children under 16 years of age were in the pension rolls. Amounts spent during 1927 for such aid by some of the counties of the state are: Ashland, $16,990; Brown, $49,643.33; Chippewa, $21,613; Clark, $14,974.50; Dane, $62,546.56; Douglas, $57,445; Eau Claire, $26,165; Fond du Lac, $34,907.50; Green, $12,430; Kenosha, $29,850.55; La Crosse, $30,839; Langlade, $13,292; Lincoln, $10,622; Manitowish, $22,995; Marathon, $25,971; Marinette, $21,509; Milwaukee, $240,156.50; Oconto, $12,585; Outagamie, $34,471.86; Racine, $48,453; Rock, $52,501; Sheboygan, $12,325; Winnebago, $30,625; Wood, $14,576.

BACHELORS BAN RADIO AT COLORADO RETREAT

Colorado Springs, Colo.—(P)—Hadden in an obscure corner of Colorado Springs is a group of tiny houses arranged in two courts, where no woman has set foot for nearly two decades. It is called the Bachelors' Retreat, a hostel for men who are past 40 years of age and can prove their single blessedness. Rooms are available for 45 men and each is equipped for home cooking.

No radio is permitted on the premises, although Fred Michelson, the proprietor, tolerates a phonograph or two.

In what may be called the lobby of this hotel are found several shoe-maker's lasts and several boards, so the bachelors can repair their footwear and wash their clothes. Michelson has several permanent guests.

OUTAGAMIE-CO SNOW REMOVAL PROGRAM COST $16,840.79

Expect $5,000 Will Remain from Appropriation After Small Expenses Are Paid

Snow removal in Outagamie-co this winter cost $16,840.79, without rental for trucks and without some small outstanding accounts which must be paid, according to a report compiled this week by A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner.

Mr. Brusewitz explained that regular county trucks were used to plow the snow from the highways and the snow removal fund was to pay a rental for them. This rental will be fixed by the highway commission. There are also a few small outstanding bills to be paid. Mr. Brusewitz said.

Of the original $25,000 appropriation for snow removal there remains approximately $8,350 and Mr. Brusewitz believes this sum will drop to about $5,000 when all bills are paid. "The snow fall this winter was light and easy to handle," Mr. Brusewitz said, "and the department experienced little trouble in keeping the important highways open to traffic. We used from two to seven trucks and two tractors, depending on the amount of snow fall. From five to twenty men were employed after each storm."

Of the total amount spent, $4,300 was for snow fence. The county now has 11 miles of fence, including three miles of panel fence and eight miles of lathe-type fence, which can be rolled into bundles. Other expenditures from the snow removal fund were as follows: labor, $5,777.67; gas and oil, $1,812.92; advertising for bids for snow fence, $11.40; new plows, $2,850; repairs on old plows and other incidental expenses, $1,003.80.

LACK OF STORM SEWER NOT TO DELAY PAVING

Lack of a storm sewer on Wisconsin-ave from N. Richmond-st. to within a few blocks of Mead-st. will not hold up paving, according to city officials. The storm sewer will be built either a block to the north or south of Wisconsin-ave and the catch basins will drain in that direction.

The question of a storm sewer on Wisconsin-ave presented by O. J. Muegge of the state board of health on a recent visit here. He warned the engineering department that the state might force the city to withhold the paving project until after the sewer was laid if no satisfaction was given. Several aldermen said they would approve having the sewer on another street, apparently settling the question.

MAKE INSPECTION OF WATER STANDPIPE

The water department standpipe on the fair grounds was inspected Tuesday morning under the direction of A. J. Hall, pumping station superintendent. A stepladder was used in looking to see how much corrosion had occurred. Painting was done and also expected to make an estimate for painting the interior of the tank. The tank was drained during the early morning and pumping operations started again about noon.

KANSAS SING 'MESSIAH' EACH EASTER SINCE 1882

Lindsborg, Kan.—(P)—Every Easter season for 47 years the people of this Swedish community have sung "The Messiah," and two members of the original chorus of 50 are in the present chorus of 500 voices. They are Mrs. Alma C. Swenson and G. E. Elnerhard.

Mrs. Swenson was the first leader of the chorus in 1882. Her husband, the late Dr. Carl A. Swenson, founded Lindsborg college, which sponsors the rendition of "The Messiah." Elnerhard is a bank cashier.

The chorus equals one-fourth of the inhabitants of Lindsborg. The singers, among whom are numerous country dwellers, devote many weeks every year to the oratorio, always without financial recompense.

There is an annual pilgrimage of thousands of music lovers to Lindsborg every Easter. One sign will be painted on top of the stand pipe, aviators saying that the tower can be seen for many miles on a clear day. The county intends to paint signs on the tower of the asylum and on the roof of the Riverview Sanatorium.

LEGIONAIRES PLAN TO PROMOTE CHILD WELFARE PROGRAM

Wisconsin Officials Invited to Conference to Discuss Work

Milwaukee—An invitation to American Legion officials of this state to attend a conference to be held in this area soon for the purpose of improving the chances for an equal opportunity in life for all little boys and girls who have lost either or both of their parents, has been received at Legion headquarters here.

The conference is a part of the Child Welfare program of the Legion, which is seeking improved legislation, and the application of existing legislation, for the benefit of orphaned and neglected children in the various states. The Legion is particularly interested in the orphans of the World war, but all children are benefited equally in the improved legislative program.

Five conferences will be held in the United States, each one representing an area under the direction of the Legion's area chairman of Child Welfare. The areas, their chairmen, the states comprising each area and the time and place for the conferences so far determined, are as follows:

Area A, John D. Crowley, 25 City Hall, Cambridge, Mass., chairman, will have its conference in Northampton, Mass., April 25th, at the same time as the area meeting of the Legion's Rehabilitation Committee. The conference will be in the U. S. Veterans' hospital. Area A is composed of Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Area B, Edwin E. Hollenback, 1910 North Marshall street, Philadelphia, chairman, will hold its conference in Philadelphia May 22d. Area B is composed of Virginia, New York, Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and West Virginia.

Area C, Guy H. May, War Memorial building, Nashville, Tenn., chairman, will have its conference in either Atlanta or Birmingham. The area is now being canvassed to fix the definite time and place. This area is composed of Louisiana, North Carolina, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Area D, Dr. L. Mason Lyons, 926 Argyle building, Kansas City, chairman, will hold its conference in Kansas City May 11th and 12th. An exceptionally fine program has been arranged with prominent speakers, including Milton D. Campbell of Cincinnati. This area is composed of Ohio, North Dakota, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Nebraska.

Area E, Louis W. Burford, 41 State Capitol, Denver, chairman, will hold its conference in Denver or Salt Lake City the last of April or the first of May. This area is composed of Colorado, California, Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

In each area notices of the conference will be sent to the Legion state Child Welfare chairman and the state member of the National Child Welfare committee. The Auxiliary state chairmen and child welfare officers of the "Forty and Eight" will attend. Auxiliary having organized its child welfare work along the same lines as the Legion, making the program a joint one. The "Forty and Eight," which has made child welfare a major endeavor, has continued this year its generous financial co-operation of last year.

EIELSON ATTENDED STATE UNIVERSITY

Man Who Flew Over North Pole With Wilkins Was There in 1916-17

Madison—(P)—Another University of Wisconsin student has joined the bulls of fame in aviation. Carl Ben Eielson, who piloted Capt. George Wilkins across 2,200 miles of Arctic ice and landed at Bar Harbor, Seaboard, Spitzbergen, after a trip from Point Barrow, Alaska, was a student in the state school in the school year of 1916-17.

Eielson and Wilkins are credited with being the first men to fly completely over the north pole in an airplane. This causes his name to be added to that of Lindbergh in the University's list of famous students.

Comparison of the two pilots' deliveries over uncharted air lands is hazardous, although an authority on aviation has declared that Eielson's flight is the greatest ever attempted.

While Lindbergh swung across the ocean he was at least on the route of steamers crossing the Atlantic, while Eielson crossed over an area unknown to man. Both faced the hazard of mechanical endurance of their planes.

But whether "Lindy" or Eielson finally gets credit for the greater contribution, if any such evaluation of the two flights can ever be accurately made, the fact remains that when aviation records it swaddling clothes and histories are written about his high spots the University of Wisconsin's name will be prominent for the work of its two former students.

When he was a student here Eielson was enrolled in the college of letters and science.

LEGION MARKERS ARE EXPECTED IN 3 WEEKS

Madison—(P)—The American Legion emblem highway signs which are to be erected at the entrance of cities and villages throughout the state at the expense of the local posts should arrive from the manufacturer in about three weeks. It has been learned at the highway commission.

GUS FINDS NEW WAY TO MAKE YOUNGSTERS KEEP THEIR HANDS OFF

There's more than one way of punishing youngsters who meddle with things not their own. Motorcycle officer Gus Herserkorn tried out a new one Monday evening and reports good results.

A pair of boys who observed a gasoline torch burning near a machine at N. Bennett-st and W. College-ave early in the evening thought it was too early for a warning light to be burning and blew it out.

Officer Herserkorn, who was in a nearby filling station getting his iron steed ready for pursuit of speeders, witnessed the act and managed to run down one of the boys.

The youth was made to mount the rear end of the motorcycle for a spin about the city and—how they rode is nobody's business. The boy declared he never again would go near a burning torch.

MILWAUKEE YOUTHS CONFESS TO TRAAS GROCERY BURGLARY

Admit They Broke into Local Store Early on Morning of April 14

A complete confession of the burglary of Traas' grocery store, 524 E. College-ave, early on the morning of Saturday, April 14, was made by Clarence Summon and Jack Clifton, Milwaukee, to Milwaukee police according to word received by George T. Prim, chief of police here, Tuesday morning.

The youths are being held in Milwaukee on charges of stealing an automobile, which they abandoned in Appleton following their burglary of the grocery store. After abandoning the car here the youths stole another machine in Menasha and they had this car in their possession when arrested in Milwaukee.

According to the letter received by Chief Prim, the two young men confessed that they had secured four checks when they robbed the grocery store but that after they made an unsuccessful attempt to cash one of them, they tore them up and threw them away.

After breaking into Traas' store the burglars ran out of gasoline on John-st and they abandoned it there. Later they went to a local restaurant where one of the pair dropped a card with his name on it.

Through this card the police identified the youths, who had been seen here several days prior to the burglary. Through a telephone call Milwaukee the young men were picked up and held on suspicion. They confessed to stealing the car which they abandoned in Appleton and it is for that theft they are being held in Milwaukee.

They also confessed to stealing a car in Menasha and to the burglary of Traas' store. If they are not convicted on the larceny charge at Milwaukee Chief Prim intends to bring them back to Appleton to face charges of burglary.

STATE FINALLY GETS OFFICIAL RETURNS

Madison—(P)—Three weeks after Wisconsin voters expressed their wishes in the election of April 3, the state board of election canvassers has made it official figures from which it can say who will sit as delegates in the political party national conventions. The official figures will probably be turned over to the canvassers this week.

A recount of votes cast in the third congressional district was made necessary by a contest between Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, Stoughton, Progressive, and Ben Marcus, Muscoda, Conservative, both of whom sought seats in the Republican national convention at Kansas City. Another delay in the official compilation of votes was occasioned by Kenosha County, which listed all votes in the presidential preference primary not cast for Norris as "scattering."

LETTER GOLF

FOR BACKGROUND GARDENERS This is the season of the year when it's easy (according to the seed catalogues) to PLANT and get CROPS

In letter golf, it's a par six, but you may be able to beat the solution on page 2

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par a given number of strokes. Thus to change Cow to Hen, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You can change only one letter of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

3—You must have a complete word at a time.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

WISCONSIN DIVORCE RATE IS GROWING BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS

New Figures Show Badger People Are Shying Away from the Altar

Washington — Divorces are gaining at a more rapid rate in Wisconsin than are marriages, figures released today by the Department of Commerce show.

According to returns received by the department from the Wisconsin State Board of Health, there were 16,818 marriages performed in the state during the year 1927, as compared with 16,554 in 1926. This represents an increase of 164, or 1 per cent.

At the same time, however, this increase in altar-bound couples is offset by the greater increase in divorces. During the year there were 2,442 divorces granted as compared with 2,388 in 1926, representing an increase of 54, or 2.3 per cent. Annulments, on the other hand, are not so popular as formerly. There were 41 granted in Wisconsin compared with 44 the year before.

The estimated population of the state on July 1, 1927, was 2,918,000, and on the same day in the previous year 2,885,000. On the basis of these estimates, the Department of Commerce says, the number of marriages per 1,000 of population was 5.7 in 1927, as against 5.77 in 1926. Thus, these figures would tend to show that while the marriages throughout the state are increasing, they are increasing just because the population is growing, inasmuch as more persons come to the altar, are shying away from the altar.

The number of divorces granted during 1927 was 0.84 per 1,000, as against 0.83 in 1926; and the number of marriages annulled per 1,000 of population in 1927 was 0.014, as against 0.013 in 1926. These figures show that the tendency toward divorce is increasing both because of population gains and because of the attitude of the public.

Milwaukee marriages and divorces both showed a decrease during 1927, the state reports. There were 5,113 marriages and 463 divorces, as compared with 5,158 marriages and 490 divorces in 1926. In each year there were 10 annulments.

Decreases in the number of marriages, despite population gains, also were noted in Rock, Winnebago, Douglas and Brown counties. Douglas county was one of the worst offenders in the state. Not being content with decreasing the number of their marriages, the people in that county registered an actual gain in the number of divorces, as per these figures: 120 marriages and 68 divorces for 1927, as against 123 marriages and 78 divorces for 1926. Douglas county figures, in other words, show a divorce for nearly every marriage.

In Rock county in 1927 there were 214 marriages and 96 divorces, compared with 248 marriages and 106 divorces in 1926. This is regarded as another mad record.

In Brown county the number of marriages in 1927 was 482 and the number of divorces 77. In 1926 there were 485 who were married and 85 who were divorced.

Fond du Lac, Jefferson and Outagamie counties shape up better in the final analysis, having increased the number of newlyweds during 1927. In Fond du Lac in 1927 there were 372 marriages and 56 divorces, as against 356 marriages and 40 divorces for 1926.

In Jefferson 236 marriages and 27 divorces were noted for 1927, compared with 220 marriages and 22 divorces for 1926.

In Outagamie 332 were married and 64 divorces during 1927, while in 1926, 338 were married and 50 were divorced.

MUST STOP TRAFFIC FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

Marion—(P)—Street car motormen and automobile drivers who fail to stop to allow fire trucks to pass, may be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year, or by a fine not exceeding $250.

No specific punishment is provided in the law, but the attorney general informs R. M. Schlachet, district attorney for La Crosse County, that it comes under the statute which provides that any person who shall be convicted of any offense, the punishment for which is not prescribed by any statute, shall be punished only by imprisonment in county jail or by a fine not exceeding $250.

LEVITAN CLAIMS WE EAT MORE THAN DO FOREIGN RESIDENTS

Fond du Lac—(P)—Drudgers is the penalty of ignorance, work the intelligent effort and normal activity of human beings, Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, told the Kiwanis Club of Fond du Lac Tuesday.

The people of the United States consume 39 per cent more of meat and sugar per capita than the most advanced foreign country; consume four times more fruit than any other country; use eight and one-half times as many telephones, eleven and one-half times as much electricity; thirty times as many automobiles; and have twice the number of homes owned by every thousand people than one of the most advanced foreign countries, he said.

"The material advantages of the country are the results of democracy, which is being expressed more and more in industry. Industry at one time seemed to be the property of the few; today most of the big industrial undertakings are owned by thousands of stockholders."

FARM HOME BURNS WITH $3,500 LOSS

Fire Starts from Defective Chimney; Owner was Former Appleton Man

Fire which was thought to have started from a defective chimney completely destroyed the farm home of Fred Zimmerman, a farmer living at Appleton Creek, about noon Monday. Mr. Zimmerman was in Appleton when the fire was discovered by his wife and he knew nothing of the fire until arrived home late in the afternoon. The damage was estimated at $3,500. The furniture, valued at $1,000, was not covered by insurance, although the house was.

A large crowd of neighbors gathered at the Zimmerman home and attempted to check the fire but it had gained too much headway and their fighting was in vain. The fire was kept from spreading to the farm buildings by a heavy wind which blew the sparks in the opposite direction. The Zimmermans moved to the farm last December from Appleton. Up Tuesday noon Mr. Zimmerman had not made plans for rebuilding.

DAWES SWEARS ONLY WHEN IT HELPS HIM IN SELLING THINGS

Regardless of What People Think, He Is Not a Rough-neck or Hell-raiser

EDITORS NOTE:—This, the 12th in a series of Presidential Campaign portraits written for the Post-Crescent and NEA Service by Robert Talley, is the first of four articles discussing Vice President Charles G. Dawes. The second article on Dawes will be printed Tuesday.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
Washington — The A. E. F. won a great staff officer and the nation won a most picturesque vice president, but he stage his greatest act when Charles G. Dawes, whose business and politics for his career.

The country probably looks upon "Hell an' Maria" Dawes — now a possible presidential candidate — as an erratic, violent man who flies at problems with a noise like a fire alarm, who curses out congressional committees, bawls out the U. S. Senate to its face and, in debate, seems to rely on his ability to shout louder, bang the table harder and grow louder than his opponent. It also is said that he plays soft music in the violin, but it probably thinks of him often in terms of a blaring caliope.

But the real Dawes is neither a roughneck nor a hell-raiser by nature; these apparent outbursts of anger and violence are mere tricks to attract public attention to matters that he wants to get before the people. In his candid moments he has admitted it. He knows the value of advertising — and he can measure the size of a newspaper headline by what he plans to say. In short, he is a supersalesman.

Dawes is a man of cultured urbanity, 63 years old, with a fondness for classical literature and art, a lover of music and the composer of "Melody in A" which Fritz Kreisler has played at his concerts. Above all else, he is a keen-witted business executive, banker and politician.

In the vice president's luxurious office in the capitol I found him the other day, puffing on his familiar underslung pipe, behind his mahogany desk in the center of the room.

Despite his fire and brimstone reputation, which extends all the way from the A. E. F. to the Senate chamber, Dawes is dignified, courteous and cordial. He didn't even use the word "damn" during the entire conversation. There was nothing of the hard-boiled army officer type about him.

I asked the general (that is the way his office staff addresses him) about his reputation as a fire-eater, but he waved aside the question with a smile. When I persisted he referred me to his book on his experiences in the war as an answer to the question.

There, I found the real Dawes had imbosomed himself. It contains his frank admission that he feigns a policy of hell-raising to carry his point; first, on the theory that the best defense is offense; second, that verbal fireworks can be depended on to arouse public interest in a dull subject. His success in getting before the people his fight on the Senate rules is a good example.

Among General Dawes' retrospection I found this:

"It amuses me to think of what must have been the first impressions of me of these splendid officers and their friends — so used to conventional military methods of statement and address — when, breathing fire and brimstone, I made my incursions into the system after results, my mind fixed upon the red-hot poker of dire necessity pressed against the lower part of my back and oblivious to nicety of convention or conventional forms of military salutation."

Knowing that "the general" plays the piano, the violin and the flute and has written several compositions, I asked him about his love for music. This recalled the familiar story that in parents, fearing he would grow up to be a poorly paid musician, had forbidden him to play and that he had hidden upstairs with a flute under his coat—choosing the flute because it was easily concealed and because its notes could not be heard outside his room.

"Half of that story is true and half of it is untrue," Dawes replied. "While my father wouldn't let me take music lessons for fear I might choose music as a career, he didn't object to me playing. So I never took a music lesson in my life."

Music has given him "since through-out life. When a controller of the currency in his early days he used to go to the White House and play the piano for the invalid wife of President McKinley. While chief of the U. S. E. F. supply forces in France he kept a piano in his bedroom at his Paris hotel to afford relaxation after a hard day's work. While head of the Dawes commission to Europe he once became so interested while playing the piano at the home of an American consul that he forgot all about an important session with a gold-brained diplomat. In Washington time he spends many of his evenings with his family in the music room of his home.

Charles Gates Dawes was born April 27, 1865, at Marietta, O., the son of General Rufus R. Dawes, commander of the famous "Iron Brigade" of the Civil War. He was graduated from Marietta College and Cincinnati law school and in 1887 went to Lincoln, Neb., to live with an uncle and begin the practice of law.

After seven years that produced little law practice — but a friendship that was later to shape his whole career — he began investing in public utilities with borrowed money. When he moved to Evanston, Ill., this was the dawn of the era of public utilities; he induced John Walsh, the famous Chicago utilities magnate, to back him, and success followed success. When, at 22, he became McKinley's Illinois campaign manager, he was already wealthy. After election, McKinley appointed Dawes controller of currency.

BOBBING NOW POPULAR AS ENGLISH HAIRDRESS

London—(P)—Twenty million women have bobbed or shingled hair in Great Britain, and British women spend $4,000,000 weekly for cosmetics and beauty preparations and for the service of hairdressers and beauty specialists.

These figures were compiled by The Daily Express from estimates given by managers of beauty parlors.

Lorimer's bank $1,250,000. The money really never changed hands. It was merely shown to the bank examiner, and it satisfied him. But Lorimer's bank later failed and the story came out. Dawes' bank was sued by Lorimer's depositors and a judgment for $1,400,000 obtained. After 10 years in the courts this was finally whittled down to $110,000.

Friends of Dawes say he was innocently trying to aid an old friend and that he was guilty of no conscious wrong-doing. Foes insist that Dawes was well aware of the shaky condition of Lorimer's bank and should not have made a "fake" loan.

"I will not debate my character with any man," is the only reply Dawes has ever made.

In those lean years of law practice back in Lincoln, Neb., 40 years ago—when both were eating at Don Cameron's 15-cent lunch room—Dawes met a young army officer whose lifelong friendship was destined to shape his whole career. The young officer, a military instructor assigned to the University of Nebraska, was Lieut. John J. Pershing. How their paths crossed again—in the great adventure of 1917—will be told in the next story.

Local Girl Would Be Secret Service Agent

There still are a few people who do not know that Appleton is the home of the first electric street car but, according to a letter sent Frederic Haskin, the Post-Crescent's information bureau at Washington recently by an Appleton man, the fact is not known to every one.

And then came the surprise, for Mr. Haskin informed the writer that the first "street" car was claimed by Cleveland, Ohio. It is believed, however, that the car referred to was a horse-drawn vehicle.

Another Appleton party has a bull dog of high pedigree and no little value that has been on the sick list for the past few weeks and the owner wrote Mr. Haskin for information as to what should be done. He was informed but no further word of the dog's condition has been forthcoming.

An Appleton girl, desiring to enter Uncle Sam's secret service department inquired for steps necessary to enter but was informed that there was a waiting list now that would probably be filled by those now living.

Probably a large number of local folks remember Dr. William S. Stadler, who formerly lived here. An Appleton family, desiring to communicate with him, inquired of Mr. Haskin and was told that he now lives in Chicago. His address also was given.

Among the unusual requests was one from a Hortonville man who wanted to know why the wheels of an automobile seemed to go backward in a moving picture, to which Mr. Haskin gave the following reply:

Motion pictures are in reality a combination of still pictures. The first picture of the automobile shows the spokes of the wheels in one position. If the next exposure of the film were made when spoke number one had advanced far enough to be in the position of spoke number two, the picture would show no motion, as spokes are identical. If spoke number one had advanced less than half way to position of spoke number two, the forward motion would be noticed. If, however, spoke one advances more than half way to the position of spoke two, the effect of spoke two moving backward as that distance would be shorter and the apparent motion would be in that direction.

AUTO ACCIDENT IN WHICH 3 DIED IS TAKEN INTO COURT

Chicago Lawyer Made Defendant in Suits by Husband and Son of Victim

Neenah—Trials of Paul J. Denny against Joseph J. Ryan and Paul J. Denny, Jr., against Joseph J. Ryan, were started Monday afternoon in Circuit court at Oshkosh. The actions were consolidated on motion of defense.

The case is the outcome of an auto accident on the afternoon of Aug. 29, 1927, on highway 41, in which three persons were killed. Paul J. Denny of Chicago, was the driver of the machine in which the three persons killed were riding. Mr. Ryan, well known Chicago lawyer, drove the other car. Mr. Ryan is a defendant on a charge of fourth degree manslaughter now pending in municipal court.

In the present action, Mr. Ryan has entered an answer and counterclaim in which he alleges Mr. Denny did not use proper care and in which he asks $10,000 damages, $2,500 for damages for his car and $7,500 for personal injuries. He denies all allegations charging him with negligence and failure to use ordinary care.

Damages asked by the Denny's total $67,000 which include damages for his personal injuries, injuries to his son, the death of his wife and damages for his car. The son was killed by the car of the Denny's. Separate demands in each instance were made on grounds of gross negligence.

Mr. Ryan, who was brought to Neenah following the accident, was a patient at Theda Clark hospital for several months. It was while he was a patient here that he was arrested.

Softball will be played this summer by at least 30 teams in the several leagues. GIRLS PLAN UNIFORM DRESS STYLE TO CUT GRADUATION EXPENSE

Menasha—In order to keep down graduation expenses girls of this year's graduating class met with Miss Agnes Cleason, head of the home economics department in the local high school, and decided to purchase inexpensive white silk broadcloth for their commencement dresses. Each girl can decide on her own pattern but they are to be tailored dresses. This will provide uniformity in price and style.

MENASHA MEN GOING INTO OLD MEXICO

ESTIMATE ONE CHILD IN TEN IS MEMBER OF STATE 4-H CLUBS

NEW CLUBS STARTING IN DISTRICTS WHERE THERE ARE NONE NOW

Average County Membership in This Vicinity Varies from 50 to 350

BY W. F. WINSEY

It is estimated that the membership of boys' and girls' 4-H clubs in the counties of northeastern Wisconsin will run this spring from 50 in the western county to 350 in the eastern and that the average membership will be at least 200.

The counties in which the estimate is made are Marinette, Oconto, Brown, Door, Kewaunee, Calumet, Outagamie, Waupaca and Shawano. The organization work is being promoted by county agents, county superintendents of schools, Smith-Hughes teachers, rural school teachers, county and state fairs, civic associations and parents—all cooperating with the agricultural service of the national and state governments. The rural boys and girls are seeking membership in these clubs. The organization of 4-H clubs is most successful and the supervision most effective as a usual thing in cases where the rural school district is made the unit of organization, the teacher the organizer and the school building the meeting place of the club.

For boys the projects may be cow raising, pig raising, grain, grasses, vegetables, fruit and for the girls anything in the line of home economics or any project that a boy might select for himself.

Although there are now 19,000 boys and girls enrolled in the 4-H Clubs of Wisconsin in 26,000 projects, only one boy and girl in ten in Wisconsin that are eligible for membership, belong to a 4-H Club. Some of those who are on the outside and have found no means of becoming members are developing 4-H Club projects on their own hook with the intention of competing with full fledged members at the county fairs. The incentive of the outside girls and boys is the fair premiums and the profit of their projects.

The value of 4-H Club training to rural boys and girls who are fortunate enough to get it and to the future of our country was expressed recently by General John J. Pershing in greetings intended for 4-H Club members in the United States. These are the words of the greeting addressed to the annual meeting of the American Federation Bureau, held recently in Chicago:

"Please extend my cordial greetings and good wishes to all 4-H Club members. As they reach manhood and womanhood, the boys and girls of the farms will become the founders of our rural homes, which must ever form the bulwark of our nation. Our progress, prosperity and the national safety largely depend upon the character and ability of the young people from rural communities. Through your 4-H Clubs you are receiving splendid training for the responsibilities of citizenship, and I trust that these clubs will continue to grow and that their influence will reach many additional thousands of the young people."

At the meeting, General Pershing said on the same subject: "Nothing about the activities of the Farm Bureau has impressed me more than the work of training the youth of the farms, through boys' and girls' clubs, for the place they are to fill in their country's future."

NEW FRANKLIN FARMER TRYING LIMESTONE

Joseph Schneider Had Soil Tested by College of Agriculture First

BY W. F. WINSEY

New Franklin—As a result of having the soil of two fields tested by the soils department of the college of agriculture, Joseph Schneider, recently unloaded a carload of agricultural limestone for use on one of these fields. As the deficiency was reported as too tons of lime, Mr. Schneider intends to apply limestone at that rate to his defective field. He will apply the limestone with a machine especially designed for the purpose. The other field tested showed no deficiency in lime nor phosphorus although it had been producing heavy crops of alfalfa in rotation for ten years. Mr. Schneider attributes the good condition of the field to coats of manure applied to the alfalfa and the commercial fertilizer used on sugar beets in the field.

According to Mr. Schneider, a carload of limestone was unloaded at New Franklin, a short time ago, by Frank Michels, a local farmer and some of his neighbors, for their own use. Another carload will be unloaded next week by Anton Peters, Jacob Crannen and two other local farmers. Mr. Schneider says also that considerable superphosphate will be tried out this spring by New Franklin farmers.

FIND NEW VARIETY OF BEAN FAMILY

Washburn—(P)—A new variety of the lupine, a flower related to the bean family, has been developed in the Chequamegon flower gardens here. The plant's blossoms, generally blue or purple, are clusters along a stem which rises above the plant's pointed leaves. It has been called the sundial plant because its leaves curl or lean toward the sun as it makes its daily course. In the old world seeds of this plant were used for food.

V. E. Drubaker, operator of the gardens, became interested in the lupine several years ago, imported seed from New Zealand and Australia, and started raising a new variety. The slow development resulted in development of a strain that will withstand the northern weather.

This development has resulted in inquiries to the gardens from Egypt, Roumania, Italy, France, England,

Jardine, Advisor To Farmers Makes His Farm In Kansas Give Returns

William Jardine, (left), secretary of agriculture, keeps in constant touch with his 230-acre farm near Manhattan, Kan. Guy Scott (right), tenant, got $4000 as his half of the income last year, and he attributes the profits largely to Jardine's knowledge of agronomy. Steers with which the farm lately topped the Kansas City market are shown above. Below are views of the house and barn.

Manhattan, Kan.—(P)—Chief counselor for six million farmers, William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, personally puts into practice the advice he offers—and makes it pay.

From his office in Washington he directs by mail the affairs of his 230-acre farm near here, and whenever he returns to Kansas on a vacation he discusses all activities with Guy Scott, his tenant.

Scott says Jardine's expert knowledge, particularly of agronomy, has played an important part in making the place pay more than $6,000 annually for the last six years.

Last year $8,000 was obtained from the sale of livestock, grain and hay. Landlord and tenant shared the money equally, while the income from poultry, eggs and cream went to Scott's wife.

The secretary of agriculture, who advises farmers to buy land now because he believes it may never again be so cheap, bought his farm ten years ago when prices were near the peak. He paid $35,000 for it, and when he leased to Scott six years ago he asked for $5,000 cash rental, desiring an income of about six per cent from the investment. But Scott preferred to operate the farm on a share basis.

"I now would be $6,000 ahead if I had accepted Mr. Jardine's offer," Scott says.

Crop rotation is carried out according to Jardine's plan, and Scott says that herein he gets the benefit of the cabinet member's knowledge of agronomy. Alfalfa or sweet clover has grown on all of the cultivated land in the last ten years, and these legumes have enriched the soil so that corn last season yielded 65 bushels an acre while the wheat made 28 bushels.

All of the crops except wheat are fed to livestock on the farm and thus marketed "on the hoof."

A herd of 44 Hereford steers from the Jardine farm recently topped the Kansas City cattle market. The steers were bought last spring, fed on pasture all summer and then fattened for 120 days on corn meal, alfalfa hay and cottonseed meal. The average weight of the animals increased in the 11 months from 625 to 1,162 pounds. Eleven months after they were bought for $8.25 a hundredweight or $56 a head, the steers were sold for $14.25 a hundredweight or $165 a head.

Dairying is not a part of the enterprise. There are only two milk cows on the farm.

Horses and mules still play their part in providing motive power, although there is a tractor. Scott insists the mules cannot be replaced for general field work, but he agrees that the tractor is useful for plowing and grinding grain.

Secretary Jardine was president of the Kansas State Agricultural college at Manhattan before he became a member of the Coolidge cabinet.

GOOD STOCK NEEDED TO MAKE FARMS PAY

New Franklin Man Proves Theory and Is Now a Successful Dairyman

BY W. F. WINSEY

New Franklin—(P)—One of the successful dairymen of this place is Joseph Schneider. His success is founded upon good management and a pure bred Holstein herd of 25 animals, made up of 19 cows, 6 heifers and a herd sire.

The foundation animals of his herd was a cow from the Luther Lindner herd, Little Rapids, Brownes, and 7 heifers bought in 1920 sired by a son of King Model, that sold for $10,400. These heifers were bred by David Zunkel, Montello, Wisconsin. Mr. Schneider's present herd sire, Ambassador Della Foles 3rd from October 1, 1925. His sire is from the 1,088 pound cow, Princess Della, foundation cow of the noted "Della" family and his dam is an $11 pound yearly record cow that has two 1,000 pound sisters.

Mr. Schneider's cows show type, excellent production ability and get into production early and stay in production long. They are checked up on costs of feed and production. Although Mr. Schneider does not belong to a cow testing association because there is none of the kind in his neighborhood, he believes in testing the production of cows and bulls through their daughters. A bull that does not increase the milk production of his daughters over that of their mothers is not the best grade of bull to be at the head of a herd, in the opinion of Mr. Schneider. But whatever the capacity of a bull in sustaining the milk production of his daughters, that capacity should be shown in the concrete of cow testing associations as well as the milk and butter fat production of cows.

Within certain limits, Mr. Schneider, believes in retaining a proven bull in his herd and afterward within certain limits also in his use in other herds. The lack of exercise, and management are serious problems presented by the aged bull.

Broodmares on skirts—Burlington, Vt.—(P)—Portable brooder houses mounted on skids have been constructed at the University of Vermont for use as a scheme to combat coccidiosis, the chief advantage lying in the ability to move small chicks to new and clean ground.

Groundhog is menace—Washington—(P)—Woodchucks or groundhogs, the federal biological survey says, have become a serious menace to crops in many parts of the country and midwestern states. April and May are the best months to exterminate them by the gas method. Females may be forced into the burrows now without damage to other animals that wintered in them.

FARMERS FAN SEED AS WEATHER DELAYS WORK

Many farmers are engaged this week in cleaning wheat, oat and barley seed and getting the seed ready for planting as soon as the land dries sufficiently to allow them to start work. Some farmers plant their seed without fanning out dried but man, farmers have hand-fanning machines and these are busy this week fanning seed.

NEWS ABOUT PRICES PAID TO FARMERS

Madison—(P)—The situation in butter markets of the state during the past week is characterized by the state department of markets as "satisfactory," while cheese trading was light. Trading in hogs was featured by unusual activity. Sheep prices were about 70 cents higher than last year, and cattle prices about $2.25 higher.

Demand for butter centered on medium and lower scores which were in exceptionally light supply. Receivers were at times holding fancy butter for premiums which very few buyers were willing to pay, the department says in its weekly review.

At the close of the week, the butter market ruled steady to firm on all grades, with a fair trade reported. Medium and lower grades were still in light supply, and buyers experienced considerable difficulty in supplying requirements on this class of goods.

Cold storage holdings of butter at the four markets on April 19 amounted to 2,015,577 pounds, as compared with 1,068,075 pounds on the same week last year. Butter prices were 5 1/2 cents lower than last year for this time.

Cheese buyers were unwilling to purchase beyond immediate requirements. Cold storage holdings of cheese on hand on April 19 at the four markets amounted to 6,954,318 pounds, as compared with 9,782,581 pounds on the same day last year.

Late in the week, light and medium weight hogs passed $10 for the first time since early last November. As compared with the previous week, better grade hogs were $1.10 to $1.30 higher, packing sows 75 cents to $1.00 higher, and pigs $1.50 to $1.75 higher. Hog prices were about 50 cents lower than last year at this time.

NEW CALF CLUB AT SEYMOUR PLANS FOR PICNIC THIS SUMMER

Eleven Boys and One Girl Belong and Meetings Are Held Every Two Weeks

BY W. F. WINSEY

Seymour—The second calf club to be organized in Outagamie county and the first to make a complete selection of calves is the Seymour calf club which consists of 11 boys and a girl. The officers are Norbert Miller, president; Earl Court vice president; Alvin Gelling, secretary and Wayne Hillberg, treasurer. Other members of the club are Carl Trost, Sutton Gardner, James Hillberg, Fay Tabbis, Fred Tabbis, Russell Hunsbun, John Tabbis and Norman Miller. John Gelling is the local leader.

The club meets twice each month at the home of Mr. Gelling. During the business meeting, the members, among other things, discuss questions in the calf bulletin that were assigned to them at the previous meeting for reading and study, ask questions and help each other to solve intricate problems of calf care. Each member is called on to report the improvement his calf made since the last meeting of the club and to kind of care to which the improvement was due. After the business meeting the members tell stories, play games and have a good time.

In a short time Mr. Gelling will begin making trips of inspection to get first hand knowledge of how each club member is raising his calf, and to make suggestions in case advice is needed.

Each club member keeps a record of the kind and amount of each kind of feed consumed by his calf and the value of the feed on the market. In the account, the calf is made debtor to its purchase price and cost of feed, and will be credited with premium won, and finally with the selling price or with its value in case it is retained by the owner.

The club is planning a picnic to be held later in the summer.

FRENCH TEACHERS HAVE WAY TO KEEP GIRLS ON THE FARM

Paris—(P)—Thirteen hundred country school teachers, fighting the rural exodus, advocate a new way to "keep 'em down on the farm."

Girls have, they say, because they want better clothes and a more civilized life. It is the teachers' plan to encourage staying at home, to keep the girls' minds on the farm, and to teach them to care for their personal beauty. The idea won a prize from the Union of Economic Institutions.

LEGUMINOUS CROPS PROVIDE GOOD HAY

Farmer and Professor Give Views in Radio Talks from Station at Madison

Madison—(P)—The value of leguminous crops for emergency hay for the dairymen was praised by two speakers last night from the University of Wisconsin radio station.

Soybeans, peas and clover provide a more economical hay crop than millet, fodder corn, sudan grass, green oats, they said describing the latter crops as "manger and cud fillers."

"Data as a crop of high yield," Sudan grass, he said, belongs to the sorghum family, responds well to warm weather, and for that reason it is necessary to prepare the seed bed thoroughly.

A combination of soybeans and sudan grass was recommended by Mr. Briggs said. The combination is not so palatable as clover, but one and one-half bushels of each makes a profitable crop.

Here And There Among The Farmers--

BY W. F. WINSEY

H. F. Wittig, superintendent of the Brown-coe asylum, has lately sold a number of pure bred, Holstein bull and heifer calves to dairymen in this vicinity.

The animals were sired by a son of Princess Della, the sire being a three-quarter brother of Princess Della 3rd, the later now owned jointly by the Asylum and the Wisconsin State Reformatory.

Following is a list of these sales: D. J. Burke, Algoma, bull; William Stoller, Algoma, bull; J. H. Roffers, West De Pere, bull; August Vander-mouse, Casco, bull; Hubert Lemko, Morrison, bull; Henry Kolers, Finger-rd, bull; Albert C. Allen, Finger-rd, bull; A. Brandenburg, Glenmore, bull and heifer; the first pure breeds he has bought; August Sommerfeldt, Gillet, bull; Carl Petersen, Denmark, seven registered heifers; Henry Bencke, Denmark, bull; Harry Heryman, route 6, Green Bay, bull; Martin Heryman, route, Green Bay, bull; Martin Heryman, route 3, Green Bay, bull; Peter Leitman, town of De Pere, bull; Paul Nosek, Seymour, bull and heifer.

M. Wittig is planning to have samples of soils from some of the fields of the farm tested by the soils department of the college of agriculture. If the tests show the fields to be deficient in lime or phosphate, he may experiment with commercial fertilizers. On account of the large number of animals on the farm and the quality of crops the farm produces, Mr. Wittig is of the opinion that the asylum fields are in good condition of fertility.

SINCLAIR GOES FREE

Shocked and disappointed as the country is at the acquittal of Harry F. Sinclair, it may, if it chooses, learn a lesson about itself from the whole affair, an invaluable lesson.

The evidence against Sinclair and Fall was overwhelming. There appeared in the case several things that do not appear in cases excepting where men are guilty. Sinclair did not even take the stand. He deemed it best not to permit the government attorneys to question him. His public vocabulary has thus far been limited to expressions such as: "How much?"—"I will send it in Liberty bonds."—"I refuse to answer."—"Not guilty, your honor, not guilty." Although he took the deposition of Fall, his conspirator, he deemed it inadvisable to offer or read it to the jury.

Yet, in two hours consideration, the jury acquits him, and we repeat, there is an invaluable lesson in the whole affair to the country. Will the country learn it?

Two things have to do with the direct enforcement of our laws, a judge usually called the court, and a jury. What is the jury? The jury is the people, sturdy, sound at heart, it is true, but not always steady; often misled and misdirected by little men who preach big words that mean nothing. And what is the court? The court is the constitution, fixed, sound, determined; yet often hectically attacked by the same little men who preach big words that mean nothing. The principle involved in the Sinclair trials was not merely the imprisonment of the culprit. It was the attempt to vindicate the law, to see justice triumph. The failure is attributable to the people, to no one else but the people, for the jury is the people. All the suits by the government to recover the vast and valuable oil reserves have been determined in favor of the government and they have been wrenched from Sinclair's possession. It were a fortunate thing indeed that they were not triable by a jury but by a court alone, for the courts lived up to their ancient and time-honored tradition of dependability and determination as against which a man with a hundred million dollars is nothing more than a tiny fleck on the waters going over Niagara, and as helpless before the truth. Nothing can ever show better the strength of one arm of our government and the weakness of another. And still little men preach big words that mean nothing and continue to mislead other great numbers of people by attacking that in our government which is the best and praising that in our government which is weakest; and for no other reason than to gain a little temporary political advantage.

The time may come when Mr. Sinclair's vocabulary will be extended to include the expression: "Isn't my time up yet, warden?"—but that will only be because the court, outraged at this man's insolent attempt to improperly influence the jury, has sentenced him for contempt.

And what of the lesson? How long will the people give ear to the little men who preach big words that mean nothing, but by which they attack courts because, in reality, they are steadfast?

THE FUTURE LEADER

What will be the result of the present standardization and specialization tendencies in business and industry in respect to the individual? In the opinion of observers of this phase of our civilization, there will be a decided increase in the responsibilities and the rewards for the leaders of the future, but a decrease in the opportunities for men of mediocre ability.

Basing a conclusion on the present consummation of ever larger and larger combinations in business and industry, it may be assumed that business organizations may be bigger, that the duties of all forms of employees, both mechanical and administrative, will be more nearly standardized than is the case today, and that specialization will be narrower and more intense. If this conclusion is correct, the individual is likely to be a smaller unit in a larger organism, with duties more definitely proscribed and offering fewer opportunities for initiative and originality.

However, this very condition will in turn create a need of more original, energetic, commanding minds to manage these greater organizations. The need will be very real and very great, stimulating, even demanding, in turn more intense training, more intense specialization. As contradictory as it may seem, this intensely trained, highly specialized individual who will guide the destiny of the great business and industrial organizations of the future must be able to see and to understand the significance of the whole picture; his vision must embrace the whole goal toward which civilization moves in order that he may safely guide his organization in its true relation to the whole. The man to whom the greatest opportunities will come in the future, therefore, will be the one who, while concentrating on his own particular line, has not neglected to inform himself broadly and completely in all those things that concern the welfare of humanity.

VETERAN'S HOSPITALIZATION

When the bill for additional hospitalization for World War veterans comes up for consideration, as it soon will, extended hearings on the subject before the legislation committee indicate, the great need of this humane acceptance and discharge of our responsibility should insure its speedy success. This is a prosperous country. These men are maintained because they fought to keep it free and prosperous. Out of our plenty the $15,000,000 asked is pitifully small compared with the sacrifice they have made, with the price they are even yet paying and must continue to pay as long as they shall live.

The need for this additional hospitalization is very real and very urgent. It may be argued that $15,000,000 is a lot of money, and it is, but we are spending much more enormous amounts on much less worthy projects. If we must economize, let us economize somewhere else along the line.

Somewhere, everywhere, in this broad land of plenty, there are men. But yesterday they were boys, healthy, happy, normal boys with a healthy, happy, normal outlook before them. Today they are men, men without health, men without happiness, men with nothing but suffering of body and soul before them, men who cannot live a normal life, who are maimed and spent and for whom the future holds no hope but death.

Why? Through no fault of their own certainly. Because they stood between us and the hand of the despoiler. Because they bear the wounds that otherwise might have been borne by you and me. That's why. And that's why we who have health and happiness and plenty and can live normal lives must see to it that there is hospitalization adequate to their needs.

TWO CREWS ON THE S-4

The submarine S-4, which rested on the bottom of the sea off Provincetown, Mass., for three months, a temporary tomb for her entire crew, has been repaired and is once more afloat, ready to go back into service.

One rather imagines that the members of the new crew will have to be men of iron nerves. The submarine is, of course, as safe as any other now; yet a man with too much imagination might easily get the creeps serving aboard it. Imagine curling up in a bunk and meditating that that very bed stayed under water for three months, with a lifeless sailor stretched out on it!

The S-4 must carry a crew of ghosts in addition to her regular complement. Let's hope that the sailors will be able to ignore them.

HOMEWORK AND TUBERCULOSIS

Did you ever stick your head inside a public school room in the middle of the session, and take a whiff? If you did, I hope you made an uneventful recovery with a short convalescence.

Especially in those antediluvian school buildings where the politicians in the board are still strong for mechanical ventilation, you find the atmosphere in the school room something frightful. If you have any heart at all in your intellectual makeup you will begin to wonder that the pupils are not all dumb all the time. Where these costly mechanical ventilation installations prevail the rule is very strict against open windows. It takes a teacher with some hardihood to let a breath of blessed fresh air into a stifling room where the ventilation is mechanical and hence perfect.

Of course, the mechanically ventilated school rooms are not the only ones where foul air prevails several hours a day. There are plenty of school rooms where no provision at all has been made for ventilation and windows are kept closed because drafts are anathema. There are a lot of country or consolidated schools where the advantages of unbleached muslin window screen, for instance, are unknown and evil is the inevitable fate of every child who comes to school. The health authorities are in a hopeless quandary about the notorious prevalence of respiratory infections at school, but they can't do anything to improve the situation without candidly admitting that there is no such illness or indisposition as a "common cold"—a reversal of their own teachings which would make them look more ridiculous than they do now, in coming with the disgraceful condition.

It is a disgrace to our boastful American sanitation, is it not, that the school room is the favorite place to acquire diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and all the other common respiratory infections that the old time sanitariums called "diseases of childhood"?

It is nothing less than an adventure for a child to go to school in cold weather, unless the child is fortunate enough to attend an open air school or something of the kind.

It is a strain on a child's endurance to remain for four or five hours daily in the atmosphere of the school room, according to generally recognized medical authorities. (Personally I don't believe that this has anything to do with the child's immunity to these respiratory infections.) Certainly we all know that it is unnatural and injurious to compel a young child to remain quiet and still for several hours a day, just because the teacher, steeped in the tradition of pedagogy, believes noise and movement objectionable.

So good an authority as Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf says the curriculum in high school is often so extensive as to be detrimental to good physical and mental development, and reform is an urgent necessity. Doctor Knopf said this in a scientific paper on Tuberculosis Among Young Women.

The cluttering of the curriculum with one thing and another gives the teacher her cue to devise an extensive "homework" schedule for the high school pupil. In my judgment this "homework" is a contributing cause of tuberculosis in many cases. It prevents the young student from getting the exercise, play, open air recreation or physical work he or she requires for normal physical development. It prevents the boy or girl from developing normal immunity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Try Again

I am still waiting for a reply to my letter written to Dr. Brady three weeks ago. I inclosed 25 cents for a copy of the pamphlet. (Mrs. E. McE.)

Answer—Perhaps you confused my column with something else. I have never asked correspondents to send money and I do not distribute pamphlets.

More Coffee Lore

I tried your way to make coffee and found it very good, but why wait half an hour for the coffee to soak? Please try mine. Bring proper amount of water to a boil then add one tablespoonful of coffee to the cup, stir, and set aside where it is warm. While stirring add just a pinch of salt. Either your way or mine. I can't tell the difference, only my way saves time. (C. E. J.)

Answer—You do not wait half an hour my way, unless you find it convenient to do so. Just put the freshly ground coffee in the pot with cold water, add a bit of sugar, stir, and set pot on fire. Watch not and snatch from fire just before boiling point is reached. Serve as soon as it cools enough. If the coffee is to stand any part of an hour or more before serving, it is better to let it stand in the cold water, for that only extracts the aroma or flavor. If it stands in very hot water, or worse, if it is allowed to boil a few minutes, that drives off the aroma and extracts the tannin, and so it is to be excused from trying your way. Tannin is nasty, bitter stuff to drink, even though it be mixed with coffee, cream, sugar and everything.

Give the Child a Chance

Please inform me if it is advisable to use the iodine treatment for goiter in a girl 10 years of age, the quantity to use. (W. W.)

Answer—That would be unsafe. Leave the treatment to the judgment of your doctor.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuesday, April 28, 1903

Grant's birthday was celebrated enthusiastically throughout the country and nowhere more enthusiastically than at Galena, Ill.

The Lawrence baseball team was to play the Notre Dame team the following Friday. It was the first game of any importance of the season.

A meeting was to be held the following Thursday night for the purpose of reorganizing a butcher's union. Thirty-five men in the city were eligible.

W. S. Patterson had gone to Stevens Point on business in connection with the new library being erected in that city.

At an informal meeting of the new council the previous evening the proposed new fire department headquarters were discussed and it was generally thought that the project would go through.

No classes were to be held at Lawrence university this following Thursday afternoon because of Founders' day.

Five years ago that day Company G was called out to take part in the war that had been declared with Spain.

Mrs. R. C. Lowell had returned from visiting friends in Milwaukee.

Mrs. S. A. Malone, daughter Ellen and Miss Alma Brill of this city visited relatives at Waukegan.

Captain John M. Baer and Mrs. Baer left that morning for Streator, Ill., where they were to remain for a week with their son Edward.

ON—

LINDBERGH SOUVENIR HUNTERS

Washington, D. C. — Although nearly a year has elapsed since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew his airplane, the Spirit of St. Louis, from New York to Paris, carrying letters of introduction, his popularity has increased rather than waned. It has become a nuisance to him. Many tremendous exploits have electrified the world, but none which has had so lasting an effect on its hero as the Lindbergh flight.

The phrase "a nine days wonder" was a well chosen one until the intrepid lad winged alone across the ocean. There had been scarcely an event of modern times which continued to keep millions of people on tiptoe with excitement for more than nine days. Usually about twenty-four hours proved enough to take the edge off a steamship disaster, a great train wreck or an earthquake. Even the most tremendous battles of the Great War were not more than nine days wonders.

But people are still talking about Col. Lindbergh. It is true that he has held up in a remarkable manner. His flight is a wonder in itself. A flight of such a nature as that across the Atlantic was the one he made to Bogota, the capital city of Colombia. Here he had to mount into the clouds and find a hidden city at a tremendous altitude.

Had his gasoline failed or his motor stalled in the trans-oceanic flight he might have violated to the surface of the sea and stood some chance of being picked up by passing vessels. But in the flight to Bogota he was compelled to traverse as rugged and hazy a country as exists in the world. For leagues upon leagues no landing place offered as safe as the surface of the ocean. Failure of fuel or engine meant an almost certain fatal crash, precipitating him down some dismal gorge or against some gutting crag, wholly beyond reach of any human aid.

These things have made a nine days wonder for Col. Lindbergh at the expiration of each preceding one and so his popularity is sustained.

NOT EAGER FOR ADULATION

It appears that there can be a surfeit of fame. A modest youth in the first place, intent chiefly upon achieving each successive goal and proving to the world that aviation is practicable under even the most forbidding circumstances, he is now eager for the adulation heaped upon him by the world.

The difficulty is that, just as his achievements in the air put up his upon the other, so his popularity accumulates and the Legend of Lindbergh grows rather than diminishes.

Col. Lindbergh has spent some time in Washington in a certain house on Sixteenth Street which, to save him additional mail and groups of the curious, will be left unnumbered. Relatively few people know just where this house is and the Colonel doubtless wishes the number was fewer.

Col. Lindbergh is a human being like the rest of mankind so far as ordinary, routine needs are concerned. Although he wings through the air like a god, he is human, eats food and wears clothes. If it were not for the fact that his substantial contribution to the art of flying had brought him considerable wealth he might occasionally wonder how long he could continue to do so.

It seems there is no point at which souvenir hunters will stop. This may seem incredible to the average layman but it is true. When Col. Lindbergh sends clothing to the laundry, it never comes back. He has attempted repeatedly to have his clothes laundered at public laundries, but either the receiving clerks at the desk, the wagon drivers, the washing machine operators, the ironers, or somebody else in laundry establishment come upon the garments and retain them as souvenirs. The man who scorned the Atlantic beneath his feet can not get so much as a sock back from the laundry.

He tried several laundries and in each case had the same experience. Attempts were made to get his laundry done under other names — names of friends and servants. All with the same result. Not a stitch ever comes back. Col. Lindbergh must continually supply himself with new linen.

MAX HAVE TO DO HIS OWN WASHING

As he is a Colonel in the United States military service it might be suggested that he have the War Department or the Marine Corps detail a company and surround a washerwoman at his residence. The chances are about ten to one that when the detail was dismissed it would be found that the Colonel still had no clean clothes but that each marine or soldier including officers, had a shirt, a collar, a handkerchief, or a sock that once belonged to Lindbergh hidden somewhere under his uniform.

Friends of the Colonel say that in all probability his next flight will be to some lonely mountain stream in the heart of the Rockies. He will carry with him a bundle of linen and there, kneeling beside the stream, will wash the clothes himself.

The same is true of hats. Col. Lindbergh has no more hats. He has given

See-Sawing On Broadway

New York — You run into the city and that in this little settlement somebody gyped the Indians of but of all strange occupations is not to be that way. She is what he called a "social coach."

There is a sophistication in New York, of course. But also there is a consciousness, there are young men who feel that they are not in the right kind of remark the proper time; there are those who feel they are continually talking of turn — opening their mouth the ancient wheeze has it, on place their foot therein.

So, we have the social coach, a young lady who keeps her feet away from their mouths, to the Queen's English, to look smart employ 75-cent words and what talk about and when and how.

The other day I had the pleasure of conversing with a social coach, Louise, she calls herself, and her plantation of her art was interesting. "Women's great failing," she said, "lies in not knowing what to talk about. Talk? Oh, yes, they talk, surely. But so often of such remote subjects so remote from topics people want them to about! Any number of women of wealth and background have met, and at interesting conversations they are utter novices."

It seems you just have to have personality these days to get a By the way, Miss Louise's real name is Beverly Colfax, and she is from Atlanta, Ga.

Unless you wish to pass a considerable fraction of the day sitting there watching the singing scenery, be absolutely certain that the bus is going to start its destination, whether it be Coney Island, Chinatown or around the city. These bus lines have "decoys" sit in the cars thus giving the impression that others are ready to get on the trip. As soon as a few people get on, the "dummies" get off and another bus. Meanwhile the decoy will assure you that "we start in a minute!" Don't believe him! get your money and keep your eyes open. USE THE SHINGLE
ADVISES DOCTOR

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
ONE of the utterances of Dr. John B. Briggs of Washington that delights me greatly is, "You shall not say, 'I just can't do a thing with Willie,' in his presence. Let a beam come out of thine eye and cut a shingle therefrom and assert thyself."

I am not an advocate of corporal punishment as a general rule, because among certain parents to strike a child is the only kind of training they know.

A whipping to them is the moral cure-all just as castor-oil is the panacea for all physical ills. And usually for dozens of reasons but chiefly because a child gets hardened to it, it is of no earthly good.

But there are times, brethren, there are times!

Frankly, with all of our child training ideas, psychology clinics, child pathologists, and high-powered normal schools it looks as though each generation of children turned out by American parents is more and more "spoiled."

It is as puzzling, as it is distressing. Eventually most of them turn out to be first class men and women, because their own common sense (and let us give a little credit to ancestral stock) comes to their rescue.

But during that period of adolescence between 6 and 20, there is something wrong. We know all about this new freedom and the new tenets of the younger generation. That's not news. We know that the word obedience is almost obsolete.

But why should this new freedom be a selfish, self-willed, extravagant, and lazy freedom? Truly, on account of the "beam," as Dr. Briggs calls it, in the parents' eyes. A good spanking once in a while might make Willie at least the equal of Gunga Din.

OUR FIRST LADY

Madison—(P)—Mrs. Fred F. Zimmerman, wife of the governor of Wisconsin, stays at home and "minds the ranch" while her husband is out campaigning. She says that is the best way she can be of help.

"A wife, of course, is going to help her husband as much as possible," she says, "but I do not believe the wife of a public official should make politics her field."

"My husband wants me to stay at home, and I want to. So it is unanimous."

The Zimmermans have two sons, Robert, 16, and Frederick, Underwood, 9. Mrs. Zimmerman's hobbies are music and flowers. She has taken many prizes with blooms from her gardens.

MARYE
and
"MOM"
Their Letters
BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Mo mdarling:

Don't let yourself suffer on account of any Swam's influence in my young life. Your precious child remains true to her money-grub. He doesn't rate it after his behavior at my party but as it turned out, the laughs are on both of us. And I guess a good laugh is one of those realities you mentioned. Anyway, it did as much good as a sense of humor.

Everything bleached out perfectly. I think I told you that Florence had as much success with Billy as she'd have trying to vamp the Prince of Wales. He just couldn't see her at all. But one look into the eyes of Alan's blond friend and presto change! he was cured of puppy love. Though what to call it now. For he's in again.

With the blond.

Alan saw it right away and began to razz me on the sly because I'd lost my boy friend. But he had to sing a different melody when it became apparent that his gal was in the same gondola that was rocking Billy to sleep. The two have a real case now.

I can't see what Billy discovered in her to fall for, but I'm relieved to have him off my hands. And I guess Alan won't be getting any more letters from that particular home wickler.

Now when I need a driver, however, Alan will have to pay for services rendered so pleasing as now.

I've never yet gone to sleep after a party without a lullaby from Alan about my errors of the evening. But I notice that he pays more attention to the live wires among my girl friends than he does to the few who behave as he's always advising me to.

Men are problems. They fall for a girl because she is peppy and dresses smartly, then they want to take all the class out of her after marriage. I wonder why they don't pick out the kind of wife they want in the first place and not try to remodel her to suit their heart's desire after the altar scene. They must think we are mental physical chameleons.

Alan doesn't like my new evening dress because it hasn't any back. But it's fashionable and I noticed him casting admiring glances at a woman who was wearing one like it at the theater the other night. What would you do with a man like that?

With much love, MARYE

Child Training Easy If
He Has Interest In Life

BARBARA NEWHALL FOLLETT

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of five articles written for The Post-Crescent and NEA Service by mothers of famous children. As their part in the observance of National Child Health Day on May 1, they disclose their principles of child training.

BY MRS. WILSON FOLLETT
Mother of Barbara Newhall Follett, 14-Year-Old Author of "The House Without Windows" and "The Voyage of the Norman D."

YOU can't teach children — they teach you.

When I first started to teach Barbara, I found her changing before my very eyes. She never has gone to school, for when she was small we lived in the country and there was no good school there, so I began teaching her at home. I found that I had to be on the alert all the time in order to keep up with her.

When she was about four years old, she showed a consistent interest in her father's typewriter and in mine. She was given a typewriter of her own and learned the alphabet and spelling on the typewriter keys.

FOUND WRITING EASY
It always has been my theory that the mechanics of writing was difficult for children. I found, with Barbara, that she learned the mechanics of typewriting as easily as she learned to manipulate her knife and fork correctly.

She was wearing one like it at the theater the other night. What would you do with a man like that?

With much love, MARYE

Lifts Your Spirit

By Edna Wallace Hopper
The vigor of a March wind carries you along with a light heart. Spring is approaching and the world seems gay and hopeful.

It's great for your spirit but hard on your skin. Every gust of wind ruthlessly plants tiny particles of dust in your pores, taxes the naturally smooth texture. Your most precious skin is constantly exposed to these harsh effects.

But you can erase the frowns upon beauty with a little care and the right help, which I spent years to find. I call this help my Facial Youth. It is a liquid cleanser which soothes the skin and actually removes the dust and grime which are so destructive. Soap and water merely cleanse the surface, and have a coarsening effect. Facial Youth does not grow hair. It has a clean, fresh odor. It's a pleasure to use this gently soothing cleanser. I know of nothing which does more to retain youthful firm smoothness of face.

May I urge you, for beauty's sake, to buy a bottle of any toilet counter? The price is 75 cents. Your money back if you are not satisfied.

Mrs. Wheeler Returns From D. A. R. Meet

Mrs. F. G. Wheeler, an official delegate to the national convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, returned Sunday evening from Washington. Mrs. George Ashman, also an official delegate to the convention, went to Miami, Florida, from Washington.

The official report of the convention will be made to the local chapter in June. Among the outstanding social affairs in connection with the convention of 4,000 delegates, was a tea given for the 34 delegates from Wisconsin by Mrs. Ben Hooper of Oshkosh in the Congressional Library and reception at Continental Congress hall for the national officers and state regents.

Mrs. R. H. Hess, retiring state regent of Wisconsin gave a report at the convention and Mrs. C. W. Spence of Milwaukee, past vice president, spoke at a meeting in the Wisconsin room at Continental Congress hall. The confirmation of Mrs. James Trotman of Milwaukee as the new state regent for Wisconsin was made.

Perfect weather helped to make the convention delightful said Mrs. Wheeler. Side trips to Valley Forge, Gettysburg, Arlington, and a memorial service at Mt. Vernon were outstanding events of the week. Under the direction of Mrs. Russell Magna money is being raised to build a new constitution hall, said Mrs. Wheeler.

Low Mark on Child's School Report Often Caused by This Neglect

Teachers urge mothers to guard against it at home

Such an easy care to give children! Yet success in school often depends on just this one thing. Teachers are urging mothers not to neglect it, because they see every day how lessons—and games, too—slump when children do not have a hot, cooked cereal breakfast before they come to school. That's why, in 70,000 school rooms today, this rule hangs on the wall:

"Every boy and girl needs a hot cereal breakfast"

School authorities know that the energy needed for a busy day in school can be supplied only by a hot, cooked cereal.

{ FREE—a plan that arouses children's interest in eating a hot, cooked cereal breakfast: colored posters, gold stars, club badges, etc., with a sample box of Cream of Wheat and booklet of cereal recipes Dept. 19-27 Cream of Wheat Co., Minneapolis, Minn. }

CALUMET COUNTY

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY TOWNS

KAUKAUNA PAVING PROJECTS GETTING UNDERWAY RAPIDLY

Road Will Run Entire Length of City When Completed This Summer

Kaukauna—With the paving of five blocks of county trunk 2 within the city limits, there will be one continuous highway with permanent paving from one end of the city to the other. This stretch of highway on Tenth-st between the western city limits on the south side and the corner of Hendricks-ave and Seventh-st was ordered paved at a meeting of the county board held last week. This highway enters the city on Tenth-st and proceeds east to Sullivan-ave, then north to Seventh-st, and along this street as far as Hendricks-ave which it passes over to reach the business section of the city. Last year the highway was routed over Seventh-st to state trunk highway 55 but in the fall Mr. Rollman of the state highway commission decided it would be better to change the trunk line to avoid passing St. Mary school grounds.

The block on Hendricks-ave between Seventh-st and Sixth-st was paved by the city last fall and the remainder of Hendricks-ave and Reaume-ave is to be paved with Amesite this spring. The county board also authorized the connecting up of the concrete at the intersection of Lake-st and the Green Bay-rd and that on county trunk 1 now at the north city limits. It is a distance of nearly a half mile between these two points.

A permanent paving also is to be placed on the Hollandown-rd on the south side. This will start on Broadway at the end of the present concrete then over this street to Dodge-st and over Dodge-st to the Hollandown-rd. Other paving to be done here this spring and summer includes the finishing of a block on Eighth-st between Metoxen-ave and Spring-st, Dixon-st from Metoxen-ave to the end and Main-ave from Fifth-st to Seventh-st.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL WILL BE DISCUSSED

Kaukauna—The question of garbage disposal in Kaukauna will be discussed at a meeting of the Kaukauna Advancement association to be held at 6:30 Wednesday evening in the council chambers of the municipal building. Several reports on this important question are to be made at the meeting.

MUSIC SUPERVISOR BACK FROM MEETING

Kaukauna—Miss Eleanor Wooster city supervisor of music, returned Monday from the national music supervisor's convention in session last week at the Stevens hotel at Chicago. She is preparing a report which will be presented to the board of education at its next meeting.

KAUKAUNA MARKSMEN HOLD SHOOT WEDNESDAY

Kaukauna—Marksmen from Kaukauna and nearby vicinity will participate in the first informal shoot of the season at the Kaukauna Gun club grounds at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, according to a statement by President Joseph Jansen. The shoot is open to all marksmen whether club members or not.

Last year the mid-week shoots were tried and were found quite successful, an even greater number of riflemen turning out for these shoots than those held on Sundays. Every other week this year a mid-week shoot will be held and the regular Sunday tournaments will be held on the Sundays between.

REPORT CARDS WILL BE ISSUED WEDNESDAY

Kaukauna—Report cards will be issued at Kaukauna High school on Wednesday noon. Principal Olin G. Dryer said Monday. This card should reach the student's home by evening and if none appear the parents are requested to get in touch with the principal. The second six weeks period of the second semester ended on Friday of last week and the final period of the school year started Monday morning last week.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

Kaukauna—Miss Millicent Ramsdell, Miss Doris Anderson and Miss Viola Anderson of Neenah visited friends in Kaukauna Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Arndt of Waukesha returned Sunday after spending a few days in this city with friends. Frank Jirkovic of Milwaukee is spending a few days in the city with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Duncan D. Harris of Milwaukee are spending the week with relatives. Mrs. W. E. Mitchell of Detroit motored to Kaukauna Saturday of last week to visit old acquaintances. Miss Hertha Smith left for a three day visit at Kenosha Monday.

The Post - Crescent's representative at Kaukauna is Gordon Patton. His telephone numbers are 298 J and 10. Business with The Post-Crescent may be transacted through Mr. Patton.

KAUKAUNA PEOPLE CLAIM SIGNBOARDS ARE HIDING BEAUTY

Kaukauna—No ordinance in effect in the city at present covers sign boards and the only way they can be removed is to declare them a nuisance. Following the erection of several of the common type, many citizens have complained to city officials that the bill boards were destroying whatever beauty there might be in the city. It was urged that something be done to stop the advertising firm from placing any more within the city limits, particularly on the sides of store buildings. The city officials informed the complainants that an ordinance would have to be enacted by the council before this could be stopped and then those already up could not be taken down unless proven a nuisance. However, if the ordinance is passed by the common council, no more bill boards can be built and those already up cannot be repaired. Then as soon as they are in need of repair the city can demand that they be taken down.

KAUKAUNA ATHLETES GETTING INTO SHAPE

Coch Puts Youngsters Through Paces in Preparation for Neenah Meet

Kaukauna—Athletes at Kaukauna High school turned out for track Monday evening for the first time this spring. Practice will be maintained regularly at the Kaukauna ball park. Coach Harry McAndrews will work his track and field team into shape as quickly as possible for there is only a few weeks left before the track and field meet of the Northwestern Wisconsin Interscholastic conference at Neenah, early in May.

Kaukauna finished third in the first meet at De Pere a year ago, losing to Oconto Falls, winner of the meet, and West De Pere. All the point winners, with the exception of W. Milwauke, who won the mile run, were from Kaukauna. In the 100 and 220 dashes, H. Whitman took a first in the 120 high hurdles and James McFadden was winner in the high jump. Roland Rader tied for second in the pole vault. Charles E. F. Whitman was third in the mile run, and W. Miller won the same place in the shot put. The relay team won first.

VETERANS CAMOUFLAGE POST HEADQUARTERS

Revere, Mass. — (AP)—Revere has a war veterans' post camouflaged like a battleship.

Zig-zag streaks of paint are spread in a weird pattern over the exterior of the house, which is the home of Revere 940. Veterans of Foreign Wars. Walls, veranda and steps share in the decoration. Members of the post did the painting.

One room within the house shares with the exterior the camouflage effect. It is designed to represent a shell-torn frame domicile in France. The effect of shattered windows is cunningly achieved. The walls bear such inscriptions as "Old Soldiers Never Die; They Fade Away."

PARIS CABARETS OFFER FAVORS TO NEW TRADE

Paris — (AP) — Night cabarets are mixing a little philanthropy with their brigandage. A few that are open during this dull tourist season are fighting a battle for business by giving away "souvenirs."

It started with handsome silk dolls for the women and leather card cases for the men. Rival cabarets came back with costly fans, silk stockings and gloves for feminine guests and pocketbooks, fancy handkerchiefs and cases for men.

To get these favors the light-seer must spend amply, for champagne goes for eight to ten times its retail price with taxes and tips for good measure. Yet by making the rounds a lot of merchandise can be collected, for the latest of favors are dominoes, lamps, perfumery, powder and candy.

What's A Free Democrat?

Ask Your Own Politician

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has gone out home to help renominate and elect his colleague, Senator R. Beecher Howell.

Howell probably needs the help. He is one of the most valuable senators on these premises, but one of the poorest spellbinders. His mind and most of his record are that of a civil engineer. His interest in and management of Omaha's municipally-owned public utilities led—or forced—him into politics. No man's soul is stirred when Howells speaks. He resembles Hoover in that he is more at home before a group of engineers or other men interested in facts and figures rather than words. He knows his stuff.

Although Howells and Norris are different types, each admires the other, which is more than is true of most pairs of senators. Norris carries more conviction in his speeches than almost anyone else and he is such an idol to Nebraska voters that his efforts probably would save Howells if nothing else would. Each can support the other wholeheartedly, for they nearly always vote the same way.

Both are independent Republicans.

Nebraska, the state of the late William Jennings Bryan, apparently doesn't take party labels too seriously. Her six representatives in the House include three Democrats, two Republicans and one "Free Democrat."

The "Free Democrat" is Edgar B. Howard. He is the only one listing himself so in the Congressional Directory.

"What's a Free Democrat?" you ask Howard.

"Just watch me and maybe you'll see," says Howard.

Perhaps the reason Howells, the engineer, can't easily engineer his reelection is that he has to spend his time in Washington.

Hoover, the engineer, is now trying to show that a good engineer can engineer a presidential nomination. One observes that Hoover is wisely refraining from roasting his own praises from the platform up and down the country. He just sits here in Washington and engineers—with what success may be judged by the number of delegates he now has under his belt.

Washington for months has speculated as to just who was running the Hoover campaign. With so many "Hoover strategists" here or nearby—

Secretary Work, Senator Moses, Harry New, Bascom, Senator George Akerson, and so on—it was supposed that they all formed a board of strategy and made decisions collectively. All of which didn't square with Hoover's often reiterated theory that one-man management had it all over the other kind.

Lately the word has crept out that the manager of the Hoover campaign was none other than Hoover, the engineer—Hoover, the organizer.

U. OF MINNESOTA BAND PLANS EUROPEAN TOUR

Minneapolis—(AP)—The University of Minnesota band will play its way across Europe on a two months' tour this summer, under direction of Michael M. Jalma, for eight years its director.

Funds for the journey will be raised at a "University Appreciation Day" May 5, when statewide representation is expected at an afternoon and evening program of athletic and other events at the University stadium and field house.

Gov. Theodore Christanson formally has proclaimed the day and has designated the band as Minnesota's good will messenger to foreign countries.

Jalma was bandmaster of the famous 151st Field Artillery band of the Rainbow Division. Sixty of the best of the 100 musicians in the band will make the trip.

Caveat emptor

A few years ago "Let the buyer beware" was not so far from being the motto of American business. If a man set out to buy a razor he might get a very excellent one—and, again, he might not. There were some very fine products. And some very poor. And there was no way of choosing the good from the bad, except by test.

Today that condition hardly exists. In every line of merchandise there are trade-marked, standardized products. Products that are unvarying in quality and performance—that can be depended upon year in and year out. When you buy them you know what they are, what they'll do, and what they cost. ... They're advertised products!

To take full advantage of this—to protect yourself—to save money—watch the advertisements! When you need anything turn to the advertising columns of this paper. Read about the things listed there. When you find the article you need, buy it—not haphazardly, but by name!

The advertisements protect your interests—read them

ATROCIOUS MURDER OF 20 YEARS AGO BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Slayer, in Asylum for Fifth of a Century, Has Regained Mentality

Fond du Lac—(P)—The spectre of a murder in the little village church of Fond du Lac has risen after 20 years to jeopardize the freedom of Grant Poole, incarcerated the past twenty years in the state's asylums for the insane. Poole's mind is now clear, physicians say, and he would be free to take his place in the world again. But the musty records of Fond du Lac county include a warrant charging that Grant Poole did on May 2, 1908, feloniously and with malice aforethought, wilfully slay Mrs. E. H. Orvis.

The old warrant charging first degree murder was drawn at the time Mrs. Orvis, wife of a well-to-do farmer, and mother of Grace, was shot down as she greeted the pastor of the Methodist church in the village at the close of the Sunday morning services. For 20 years the state has been prevented from demanding that Poole be punished for the crime. He has been protected by his mental condition.

Now with his mind clear, Poole, 55 years old, and aged beyond his years by his experiences, will face a jury in the judicial court during the May term. A jury will decide whether he was sane at the time of the shooting. Upon the outcome hangs the fate of the young farmer who is alleged to have killed the woman who discouraged his courtship of her comely daughter.

Old newspaper files tell the story of the tragedy that brought death to Mrs. Orvis, and the incarceration of Poole, a young farmer, who had previously been confined because of his mental condition.

It is a story of unrequited love. Miss Orvis worked in the Oakfield bank and lived with her parents who were prosperous and prominent in the small rural community. Poole, the son of a farmer, fell in love with Miss Orvis, but his affection was not reciprocated. He was persistent finally the door of the Orvis home was barred to Poole, and he was warned not to annoy the daughter of the house.

That was the state of affairs on the morning in May when Mrs. Orvis attended the devotional services at the Methodist Episcopal church with her husband. Their daughter was absent, having gone to her school. Sitting in front of the couple was Poole.

The service concluded, the Rev. Sablin Halsey went to the door to greet his parishioners as they departed. Mr. and Mrs. Orvis were followed to the door by young Poole. As they neared the pastor, Poole drew a revolver and confronted the elderly couple. Pointing the weapon at the woman, Poole fired three shots. With prayerbook in hand she fell, mortally wounded, into the arms of her husband. Managing the frightened members of the congregation with the revolver, Poole held them at bay while he backed out of the church and escaped into the woods. Mrs. Orvis, who was 50 years old, died as the pastor intoned prayers for the dying.

Aroused by the slaying, the community quickly organized a posse. One hundred armed men set out in pursuit, spreading out like a fan, combed the woods and fields in all directions.

At dusk Poole was captured near Ladoga by William Bratz. Brought to Oakfield, the accused slayer was quickly transferred to the county jail at Fond du Lac as members of the posse feared attempts would be made by the infuriated community to take the law into its own hands.

"I did not intend to kill anyone," the 35 year old farmer said when questioned. He told about being subject to hypnotic influences and this, combined with his irrational conduct, led to an examination by alienists who held he was insane. Upon their recommendation he was committed to the northern hospital for the insane at Winnebago. It developed that five years previously he had been committed to the asylum, and after three years had been given his freedom on parole. Since that time he had been working on his father's farm, and was known in the community as being "queer."

Several years after his recommitment in the state institution at Winnebago, Poole was transferred to the Central Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Waupun. During the past year Poole gave indications of having recovered his sanity, and a recent examination by psychiatrists of the two institutions confirmed this suspicion. The findings of the sanity commissions were communicated to Circuit Judge Chester A. Fowler. Learning the circumstances that led to his commitment, the judge ordered the charges renewed.

The machinery of justice, lying dormant for 20 years, is demanding its penalty.

roll's Vanities and in the "Good News" company now playing in Chicago. She has a truly beautiful voice and has been a radio star for WOR and WJZ New York. A few years ago she won third place in the Miss America contest at Atlantic City. The feature comedian Don Adams, who has been in a good many New York successes and has lately played at the Fischer Theatres as an added attraction. The juvenile Mr. John Kane, is a handsome young chap and comes direct from his successes in London, England. Mr. Fred Neely, has been a feature comedian with many road shows and has recently been starred with the Fanchon & Marco Revues on the West coast.

Miss Alvie Pulman is a local favorite who resides at Fond du Lac and who gives up a New York engagement so that she may appear with the "Vanity Box Revue," Miss Geane Norman has only recently come to America from her success in the English Music Halls. Miss Norman has a splendid voice, marvelous personality and certainly will please the patrons.

Jack Taylor has had many years experience as a leading dramatic player and is in charge of the production. Cecil Ferguson who will handle the dramatic juvenile roles in the "Vanity Box Revue," is a rare combination of actor and comedian and was delayed only from making the Pacific flight by an aviation accident which occurred on his way to the coast.

The eight girls who comprise the ensemble are all specialty artists and I am certain that you will be pleased with them as they are above the average chorus.

Come in and celebrate with our Jubilee. We are offering a fine high grade show at popular prices. Besides this musical comedy, there will be regular news, comedy and a feature picture starring Reginald Donney in "Good Morning Judge."

AIR PICTURE NOW AT FISCHER'S PLEASES FANS

Timeliness is always an attribute in appealing to the motion picture public and, as was the case of "Wings," the epic of the air, "The Legion of the Condemned," another screen story of the aviator, which opened at Fischer's Appleton theatre last night is bursting with this selfsame constituent.

Following in the wake of Col. Lindbergh's flight, the country has been demanding more and more air stories. With "Wings" and "The Legion of the Condemned," Paramount is more than keeping abreast of the times.

"The Legion of the Condemned" will give the spectator full entertainment along lines, names, thrills, love interest and entertainment. From the man who takes his dying seriously right down to the flapper who likewise dwells a bit upon the romantic side, no one is to leave the theatre where this picture is being shown without a fine reaction.

It is the War again. You cannot get away from that, but it is the War from an angle only touched upon in "Wings" and developed to a high degree in this story. A young American, a newspaperman, thrown together with members of an unattached flying unit at the front; men who have debts against society that can be obliterated only by an honorable death. They fight for the dangerous missions, making their deeds of valor the talk and envy of the fighting front.

It was only natural that Paramount would select the young William Wellman to direct "The Legion of the Condemned." In the first place he was a member of the Lafayette Squadron himself during the War and there is little you could tell him about the flying of airplanes. Secondly, this is the young man who handled the megaphone of "Wings" and so there is very little you could tell him about the photographing of air pictures.

Further than that, the story is from the pen of John Monk Saunders, the author of "Wings."

In the leading roles are Gary Cooper, as the young American newspaperman turned ace, Fay Wray, discovered by Eric Von Stroheim and given the lead in "The Wedding March." Both turn in splendid performances. Other members of the cast are Barry Norton, of "What Price Glory," Launa Chaner, Vova George, Francis Mc Donald, Charlie Bird, Freeman Wood and E. H. Calvert.

"DRUMS OF LOVE" IS GRIFFITH MASTERPIECE

Creeping unseen into the lives of three persons, aided by the hands of a clown who has the natural distaste for his master of all mannequins, Fate plays the principal part in D. W. Griffith's "Drums of Love," which was given its premier showing at the Elite Theatre yesterday.

The picture transplanted an enthused audience bodily into the South America of a hundred years ago when the nobility of Europe tried to set up a new aristocracy in the new world as the old fell at the close of the French Revolution.

Don Cathos, the hunchback duke, played by Lionel Barrymore; Don Leonardo, his brother, Don Alvarado and Emmanuela, played by Mary Philbin, created living characters rather than characterizations.

Their portrayals brought new being into flesh and blood existence just as the pen of Shakespeare and Goethe made Hamlet and Marquise immortal, in the opinion of those who saw the picture.

HOORAY! HAROLD TEEN IS COMING!

"Harold Teen," the drug store cowboy with Oxford bags and a weakness for Stetson, whose antics on comic pages throughout the country have entertained millions, has turned to the screen and comes in that form to the Elite Theatre beginning Monday.

First National Pictures made "Harold Teen" under the direction of Mervyn LeRoy, and in the opinion of critics, it is one of the most entertaining and delightful comedies of the year.

An all-featured cast is seen, including Arthur Lake, Mary Brian, Alice White, Jack Puffy, Lucien Littlefield, Fred Kelsey, Lincoln Stedman and a host of others.

Firing Him Won't Pay Your Loss

DISCHARGING an employee after finding out that he has robbed you is like locking the stable door after the horse is gone.

The sensible thing to do is to place your employee under bond and let the Fidelity and Deposit Company relieve you of all worry about who will pay the loss should one of them dip into your funds.

You will be surprised to know how little it will cost you to guarantee the honesty of your employees. Let us give you full information.

KREMER HURLS CHAMPION PIRATES OUT OF CELLAR BERTH

National League Banner Winners Of 1927 Finally Crawl From Loop Bottom

Frenchman Blanks Cubs With Three Hits While Mates
Smack Malone, Nehf

"Wiz" Kremer has pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the National League cellar—a strange resting place for champions.

The big Frenchman blanked the Chicago Cubs with three hits at Wrigley field Monday while his teammates were running up six runs. Idle because of cold weather, the Boston Braves exchanged their seventh place post for the Corsairs' ranking at the bottom of the heap.

Kremer held the Cubs in subjection all the way while Pat Malone, rookie strikeout artist, and Art Nehf, once the left-handed pride of John McGraw's heart, were pounded for 12 safeties including a home run by Glenn Wright with one on base in the first inning. Paul Warner, National League batting champion, shook himself out of a slump with three singles. Malone had the satisfaction of retiring seven men on strikes.

Some weird work by Wee Willie Sherdel gave the Cincinnati Reds a 3 to 2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals at Redland. Willie did two things in the third inning that he's not often guilty of. He walked a man with the bases filled and he made a wild pitch. These two mistakes, coupled with a bobble in the infield, gave the Ohioans all their runs. The Cards bunched hits off Adolfo Luque in the second and sixth innings for single runs. They threatened again in the ninth but a double-play snuffed out what looked like a promising rally.

The cold and rainy day saw the American League successful in staging only two of its four scheduled games.

BROWNS BEAT INDIANS

The Cleveland Indians dropped their third decision of the season to the Browns at St. Louis, 4 to 2. Manush's homer in the first and four singles off Shaute in the fourth gave the Browns all their runs. Sam Gray, former Mackinnon, registered his third victory in four starts.

Owen Carroll pitched the Tigers to a five-hit, 3-0, victory over the Chicago White Sox at Detroit. Bill Cissell, expensive Sox shortstop, personally accounted for two of the Tiger runs when he threw wild to the plate in the eighth inning. George Connolly pitched good ball for the Sox, granting only seven hits and fanning a baker's half dozen.

ARMY, ILLINOIS SIGN TWO-YEAR GRID TREATY

New York.—(AP)—Seeking to fill the hole left in its schedule by the breaking off of athletic relations with the Naval Academy, the Army has signed a home and home contract with the University of Illinois for football games in 1929 and 1930.

Under the agreement, formally approved by the secretaries of war, the Army will travel to Urbana to meet the Illini in November of next year. Illinois will come east for the return game against the Cadets either at New York or West Point, in the same month of 1930. The exact dates have not yet been fixed.

Football observers say in the agreement additional confirmation of the belief that there was little chance of the Navy and Army adjusting their differences over eligibility rules for some years to come at least.

The Cadets' trip west to meet the Illini in 1929 will mark the first time the Soldiers have played an inter-sectional opponent in the west. It will also be the first time the Army has clashed with a "Big Ten" team since Chicago was defeated at West Point in 1903.

PAYNE STILL HAS 36 MINUTE LEAD ON DERBY

Waynesville, Mo.—(AP)—C. C. "Cross Country" Fyfe's monobyst, 73 survivors of an original field of 198, left here for their 52nd day of travel which will carry them to Rolla, 31 miles east of here Tuesday.

Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., youth, retained a 36-minute margin over Peter Gizza, of England, when the two loaded through the 51.2-mile lap from Conway, Monday.

Tuesday's course was over a hard-packed gravel highway in the heart of the Ozarks.

consist's own Olympic entrants will be brought into competition. They include Wisconsin's two of captains, "Chuck" McGinnis, Ken Kennedy, and Johnny Zola. Herb Schwartz may also show.

Immediately following this track meet, a ball game will be played between "Key" Kato's "Old-Timers" and George Kato's "Youngsters." The dividing line to be from 1870 to 1910 for the "old-timers." The reunion public will be capped in the evening by a dinner, held either in the Trophy room of the Wisconsin gymnasium or the same place adjacent. This dinner, the athletic director promises, will be a feast of speeches. Instead there will be just heart-to-heart talks of old times.

Mr. Little is especially anxious that this first reunion be a huge success again of "the boys who gave Wisconsin athletic prestige" is a worthwhile aim. He has appointed various committees which will push the plan into its successful culmination. This first step has been to corral the "W" winners. The next move will be the sending of invitations to these men, who now reside at all corners of the United States.

WIN SECOND IN STATE TOURNAMENT

Top row (left to right)—A. P. Jensen, coach; James Murray, Alfred Bradford, A. C. Remley. Bottom row—John Bartman, Fred Schlitz, Dr. R. V. Landis, John Neller, Guy Barlow.

The Appleton Y. M. C. A. volleyball team, 1927 state champion, fared not quite so well this year, being forced to take second place to Eau Claire at the state tournament at Green Bay Saturday. The tables were turned for last year the local men beat Eau Claire a much harder battle for the title had it not met one of the strongest teams in the midwest in a semi-final game. The Racine team, a past state champ, proved a tough nut for the locals and they were plenty tired when they entered the finals with Eau Claire.

Expect Haskell Indians To Feature Penn Relays

Philadelphia, Pa.—A quartet of half mules from Haskell Institute is expected to furnish the principal opposition to New York University in the two mile relay race, a feature of the University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival on April 27 and 28.

The Indian team and New York University are two of twelve teams already entered in the event with the possibility of several other teams before the closing date for entries.

New York University with the fast stepping Phil Edwards running anchor won the two mile intercollegiate indoor championship during the past winter in 7 minutes 59 2-10 seconds, defeating among others Dartmouth, Georgetown and Boston College.

Haskell is the record holder for the event in both the Kansas and Drake carnivals, the former in 8 minutes 3 and 8-10 seconds, and the latter in under 8 minutes. These marks are comparable to those made by the New York team indoors and indicates a keen race.

The Indian college in virtually every sport has taken the place that Carlisle held in the days of Jim Thorpe, Mt. Pleasant and other brilliant redskins of the past. Their track teams in recent years have been conspicuous in meets all over the country.

In C. Walking, R. Johns, H. Galles and S. Manuel, Haskell has a speedy quartet of half mules who should give the eastern champions and Boston College, last year's winner, a keen duel.

When it is considered that New York University defeated Dartmouth by twenty yards, Georgetown by thirty and Boston College by forty the race outdoors should be close from the start particularly with Haskell as a starter.

Maryland, Columbia, Penn State, Cornell, Bates, Union, Lombard and Ohio State are the other entrants in the race.

Over three thousand athletes representing over 500 colleges and schools will compete in the gigantic two day carnival, Oregon and California from the Pacific Coast and Oklahoma and New Mexico from the southwest have teams entered.

Three large Wisconsin schools are included in the latest list of entries. Vassau, 1927 Wisconsin River Valley Conference champion and Boys' Technical and West side of Milwaukee, the latter one of the strongest teams in the cream city. The class B events for the smaller schools will be run off in the morning of May 10 starting at 9 o'clock. The class A field events will start at 1:15 in the afternoon and the track events at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Ray Dodge, famous distance runner of the Illinois Athletic club, a member of the United States Olympic team in 1924, will act as referee and starter, it was announced Tuesday. The remaining officials will be announced next week and they will include many stars of the same prominence in the world as Dodge.

Merchants of Appleton are cooperating greatly with the college in bringing the athletes of four states here for the meet and they are donating sets of three medals, gold, silver and bronze for the three place winners in the individual events. Many of the merchants already have given the medals, the meet officials said.

ORANGE TRACKMEN IN MIDWEST MEET

Capt. Johnston, Seven Mates
Compete With Best Prep
Stars

Eight athletes of Appleton high school and Coach Joseph Shields will leave Friday for Madison where they will take part in the annual Midwest Intercollegiate Relay, sponsored by the University of Wisconsin. Two relay teams and three individual workers in the weights, broad jump and 100-yard dash will perform at the Capitol City.

The half-mile relay team, with one exception, will be the quartet which won the indoor half-mile at the Green Bay Columbus club contest recently from Manitowish. Valley conference and state high school champion, East Green Bay and West Green Bay, and the medley team will be the same as that which won the half-mile event at the Roemer, Kuntz, Marston and Wolfgram Nohr run, the other lap at the Bay. The medley team will be Kuntz and Wolfgram, in the 220-yard dashes, Roemer in the 440 and Nohr in the half-mile.

At the Bay meet Roemer won the 440 with ease and was anchor man of the relay team, coming from behind to win. Against one of the best collegiate quarter milers in the state Saturday, Captain Don Hyde of Lawrence, Roemer finished a close second to a 56 second mark Wolfgram, who replaces Nohr on the half-mile team, was a close second in his heat of the 40-yard dash at the Bay losing to an experienced three-year man by a poor start only.

Johnston will enter his three pet events and should place in all the three though he may not take first in the fastest competition he has ever faced. He was Valley record holder in the 100 yard dash, broad jump and shot put last season, being undefeated in any meet in all three and hardly ever pressed enough to really see what he could do if necessary. He'll be plenty pressed at Madison where they put the shot around 47 feet. He finished third to a pair of three-year veterans, the Hyde twins, Saturday, but both are experienced college men and the winning time was 10.1.

Chuck McGinnis, record holder in the pole vault and high jump will be one of the special attractions that are part of the relays, Tom Lieb, manager of the event at the University of Wisconsin announced.

McGinnis, who is training for the Olympics, will give a special high jump and pole vault exhibition for the hundreds of high school track stars entered in the relays and for the spectators. Lieb hopes to have some other Badger star perform for the relay crowd. He is thinking about asking Arnie Mucks, shot put record makers to leave the ball, April 28.

Coaches of the prep school track and field stars will meet at luncheon on the morning of the relays and will draw for the relays and heat positions.

PINKY MITCHELL JUDGE AT VALLEY BOXING CONTESTS

Star Milwaukee Scrappier
Picked for Post at Amateur
Finals at Green Bay

Green Bay—Myron "Pinky" Mitchell, former junior welterweight champion of the world and at present contender for the middleweight title, is likely to be seen this summer in an important match in that direction, has consented to act as one of the judges in the finals, on Friday, of the Columbus club's Fox river valley amateur boxing tournament.

The tournament has cast about for the best possible boxing judges for the finals for the last participating at least, valley amateur championships will be settled that night. The card next Friday night winds up the first all-valley tournament and the winners of the four whaling good February card a chance to save-off with the winners of an equally impressive March card of amateurs. That ends the tournament at least, and the six young men who have gone through the whole affair victorious, upon being recognized as the leaders in their weight classes.

The second judge has not been selected, but the promoters admit that Joe Sangor, Charley Higgins, veteran coach and trainer of four world champions, and "Eckstein" Eakin, boxing promoter and matchmaker in Milwaukee and Chicago have all been invited and the club will be pleased equally which ever one accepts the bid first.

The little moderately-priced pasteboards which assure good seats for this last act in the valley's first tournament of noses and punches have been placed in circulation today and if the record amateur crowds which have been drawn to the first two elimination programs are any prophecy, the attendance next Friday will come close to any boxing crowd ever assembled locally, numerically speaking.

MILWAUKEE BOY SCORES K. O. IN AMATEUR MEET

Boston—(P)—Tommy Lown, of New York, the national 147-pound amateur boxing champion, started impressively here Monday night in the A. A. U. National tournament by scoring a speedy knockout with Frankie Miller of Buffalo, as his victim. Lown landed a terrific left hook on the Buffalo boy's dropping him for the full count in the first round.

Ensign John A. Charlson of the U. S. Naval academy, appeared to be the best of the 135-pound class. He dropped Robert E. Beattie of the U. S. Military academy, his first opponent, for the full count with a right cross to the jaw in the first round. George Russo, the New England 135-pound champion, won the decision in his bout with Emory Arnett of the University of Washington. In the 112-pound class Chester Karston of Grand Rapids, Mich., easily eliminated Peter Poca of Buffalo.

Ensign Harry Henderson of the Naval academy, appeared the best of the 160-pound talent. He drew a tough customer in John Begley, of San Francisco, but found him often with terrific left jab and felled him in the second.

Dave Maier, Milwaukee 175-pound, knocked out Willie Huffman, Grand Rapids, in the first round, shortly after the bell rang, to start the bouts in that class.

CARLETON BEATS CARD BALLERS IN 10 FRAMES

Madison—(P)—In a baseball game of ten cold innings, Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., defeated the University of Wisconsin, 4 to 3. Addison, pitching for Carleton nine, struck out nine men and did not walk one.

Haggerty, on the mound for Wisconsin, was wild at times, and was relieved in the last inning by Mommson. The Badgers missed an opportunity to win the ball game when in their half of the ninth, with score 3 and 3. Mommson, batting for Haggerty, drove one far into left field, which was brought down by Hackett.

CONTRACTORS BACK UP ON SEWER PROJECT HERE

Vickers and Bowersack, Stevens Point contractors, who were bidders on the section of the upper Fourth ward sewer project east of Cherry-st and across Riverview golf course, have relinquished claim to the job following a conference with the board of public works. The job now probably will go to the E. J. Wilson Construction company, Appleton.

The Stevens Point company asked their bid be withdrawn when it was found that only a small section of the sewer could be laid this spring. Directors of Riverview golf club have refused to permit laying pipes over their property until after Nov. 1. The plan was to complete the job in the fall but the contractors felt it would involve too much expense.

HAGEN HEAVIER AS INVASION STARTS

Still in Good Condition, However, for Trip to England

The following story on Walter Hagen is the first of a series of Associated Press stories on leading sports personalities and their prospects in the forthcoming national or international events.

New York—(P)—There is more of Walter Hagen on his British invasion of 1928 than has been present on his other five excursions in search of the open golf championship. Whether the addition is to be an asset or liability, "The Hag" is yet to learn.

His actual playing equipment is the same. He still has the bulging bag with spare clubs, extra shoes, several sweaters for use if a cold wind blows up, and one of the biggest of all golf umbrellas as rain insurance.

But this year, the confident Hagen walk will be topped off by a double chin and the turf of Sandwich will be called on to support much more Hagen poundage than was the case when he won his first British Open there in 1924.

Hagen can not be called "fat and forty" for he is only 36 years of age, but he is more than pleasantly plump after a winter in which golf has been only incidental to other activities.

Anything lacking in his physical condition, however, may be offset by his mental slant. After what amounts to a long vacation from golf he is anxious to return to serious competition and will make strokes and enthusiasm with all comers.

"Who knows?" he asked, as he was queried on his ideas of winning the title as he sailed for England.

"I might win again, at that. Golf is a funny game. When you think you will, you are just as apt not to, and when you feel that you are pretty sure to come through they may not be able to find you at all at the finish."

"I'd like to be British champion again and think I have about as good a chance as anybody else. I haven't played any golf to amount to anything this winter, but that won't make any difference."

"Why you have played more golf than I have since November," he said to a reporter.

"Not me," replied the golf writer, shocked into a grammatical lapse of the unexpected charge.

"Well, if you have played at all, you have," insisted Hagen. "All I have done has been to knock the ball around a little. In California I played on even terms with motion picture actors, but when I went up against Charlie Guest and the other pros, and George von Elm, who is good enough to be a pro, I insisted on a handicap."

The idea of Hagen asking or accepting a handicap caused his hearers to smile.

"That's right," he said. "Von Elm started me one up when I played with him."

"I have no idea of distance of course after my lay-off," he continued, "and I won't know where they are going for a while. Of course, I have not gone so far back. I won't be able to hit the ball, but hitting it and knowing that it will go somewhere close to where you want it to go, are two altogether different things."

"I ought to be just right when we get to Sandwich for the championship," the old Hagen said, as his natural confidence in his ability under all conditions drove thoughts of distance and trusty clubs from his mind.

MIAMI PREPARES FOR SHRINERS CONCLAVE

Ancient Egyptian Panoply Will Be Feature of Meeting at Florida City

Miami, Fla. — The atmosphere of ancient Egypt is being recreated in Miami for the 54th annual Imperial Council of the Shriners, next month. The setting for the council, which is expected to bring tens of thousands of visitors here, will be uniquely in keeping with the Shriners' rituals and costumes.

In a latitude just south of Cairo, Miami is well equipped by nature for the transformation. What nature hasn't supplied in the way of Egyptian panoply for the event, Director General Henry R. Prigden will.

The center of the official entertainments and decorations will be in Miami's new Bay Front Park reclaiming will help a lot and win, lose or draw it will tune me up for the shot at the title."

There is no doubt that Hagen thinks he can win the British open. If he comes, to the home hole needing a birdie, or even an eagle, to win or tie, he will have the caddy take the pin out and leave him plenty of room to get the ball down, no matter how far away from the cup he may happen to be.

Hagen down to weight has been a hard nut to crack in British competition. There's no telling what he will do with a double chin.

ed from Biscayne Bay and transformed under the direction of landscape experts. The park is thirteen blocks in length and approximately one thousand feet in width. It lies between the skyscraping hotels of downtown Miami and Biscayne Bay, fronting East on the bay and west on Biscayne Boulevard.

Five blocks of grandstands will be constructed along Biscayne Boulevard with a seating capacity of 20,000.

On the opening day, May 1-3, the Shriners in their brilliant costumes will be reviewed by the Imperial Potentate, who will be stationed half way through the Garden of Allah on Biscayne Boulevard in a stand representing an Egyptian mosque.

The next day there will be a pageant and presentation of the colorful history of Florida from the landing of Ponce de Leon down to the present time.

The evening of May 2 will see an electrically illuminated parade, in which each marcher will bear incandescent lights in the Shrine colors. The bonfire will be darkened to lighten the effect.

An illuminated water parade will be a feature of the third night with hundreds of yachts sailing by under the play of brilliant searchlights.

To create a Garden of Allah amid the palms and flowers of Bayfront Park required only the genius of an ancient civilization. Maha Shiva, Temple of Miami provided there, with reproductions of Egyptian art.

Parades will enter the Garden of Allah between two groups of four massive columns, thirty feet high, supporting an entablature.

Between the arches extends the Avenue of the Gods, lined on the east with colossal statues of stone. These figures are reproductions of the statue of Ramses, a Pharaoh of the fourth dynasty, who ruled about 2775 B. C. He is represented as the builder of the great pyramids.

Buildings within the garden will form an Arabian-Egyptian village, gay with the colors of the orient. Above the bazaar will be a minaret from which a Moslem will call the faithful to prayer.

At the southern end of the garden, from Flagler Street to Biscayne Bay, will be the Avenue of the Sphinx, guarded on each side by massive figures. From this avenue a huge electrical procession will flash rainbow-thrilled rays against the midnight skies.

JUMBO BRAKE TESTER

that accurately tests brakes and makes possible perfect equalization and adjustment.

See For Yourself

Car is driven up the ramps and onto the sturdy steel runway which automatically adjusts itself to any wheelbase. Wheels settle onto brake tester rollers. Two powerful electric motors start tester rollers turning. Brakes of car are applied. Breaking power on each wheel (two-wheel or four-wheel brakes) is instantly recorded on the gauges which are all located in a group on the left side of the machine for comparative readings. After initial test and comparative readings, brakes are adjusted. This process is repeated until brakes are perfectly equalized.

The Jumbo Brake Tester is the only brake testing machine that takes the weight of the car into consideration. The JUMBO Brake Tester enables us to quickly and accurately adjust and equalize two and four wheel brakes at their maximum capacity—saves unnecessary wear on brake linings and tires—eliminates accidents due to inefficient brakes—in short, give you ample braking power which may be relied upon for all emergencies.

Bird Babies

A sitting hen is lost to everything but her duty. Instinct plays its part, for at the time when she should hatch her eggs a great heat develops in the breast of the sitting bird; her brood patch is hot. When the wait is ended and the babies come cheeping forth, her tender care has only begun. Here is pictured an Antarctic bird, the Skua, with her chick.

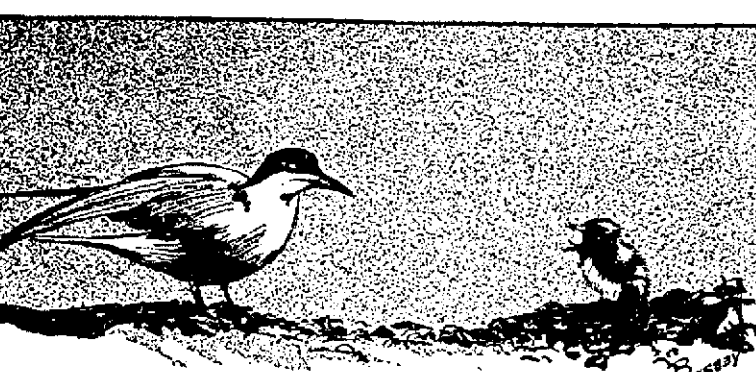

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-26.

These downy little chicks are Tinamous. They are South American birds and run almost as much as they fly.

Here is a little brood of White Storks. They are very different in appearance from the long-billed parents.

A mother Tern, out with her baby, is pictured above. They are the Drakes and Raleighs of the bird world, Arctic Terns sometimes traveling as much as 22,000 miles a year. Terns have been known to fly from Arctic to Antarctic. The bird is a great fish eater. The Tern builds its nursery near the sea, in some nest scooped out among pebbles. (To Be Continued)

LIMESTONE CRUSHER GETS INTO OPERATION

New London Man Gets Ready for Big Business as Farmers Start Spring Work

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Beginning his second season of pulverizing limestone for the manufacture of fertilizer, George Millard of this city started his equipment into action early on Monday. Mr. Millard has worked up a business in this line through his knowledge of soil needs and the popularity of this form of soil sweetener as used in other communities.

This business is among farmers of this community. The fertilizer is trucked out in ton lots. Mr. Millard stated that the price of this agricultural stone compares most satisfactorily with other brands which retail at about $30 to the ton, while raw limestone, as sold from the local quarry, averages much less.

It has been found to be excellent for all cropped out soils as it provides a soil bacteria which is essential to nearly all crops. Mr. Millard expects that the next two weeks will provide plenty of work for him as the farmers hereabout are being made ready for the growing season. Following this period the stone crusher at the quarry will be put into use preparing stone for road use.

TIMBER OWNERS PAY FOURTH OF TAXES

Radio Speaker Says It Is Time We Were Paying Attention to Industry

Madison—(P)—Timber owners and wood using industries are paying one-fourth of the taxes, directly or indirectly supporting one-fourth of the population, creating one-fourth of the commercial business and through those dependent upon these industries are consuming one-fourth of the agricultural products of the state.
So said D. C. Everest, representing the American Pulp and Paper Manufacturers association, "It is about time that we have some thought as to how we may continue these industries." He was speaking before the microphone of radio WHA, University of Wisconsin here.

Mr. Everest outlined the growth of forest work from a protection period on the west coast of its present status "American Forest Week" with Canada and the United States cooperating to make it internationally recognized.

He said timber is, and must be considered a crop the same as corn or potatoes, and that at present Wisconsin is utilizing only about 25 per cent of the land that might be devoted to this crop—a thing which no farmer would apply to his total land.

"Three fundamental things must be considered in this state before we can hope for much results in timber growing," he said.

First the state must find which lands are better suited for growing timber and which of these timber lands are better suited to certain types of trees. This will be accomplished through the land surveys now being conducted, he said.

The second important step, Mr. Everest declared, is the prevention, suppression and education. He said that the conservation department's new outline of fire districts was calculated to improve fighting and observation conditions and urged a thoroughgoing education campaign for inhabitants of or visitors in the woods, so that camp fires and smoldering pipes, cigarettes or matches would not be carelessly left to start fires.

PRIZE OFFERED FOR WINNING ESSAY ON 'WHY SHOULD I VOTE'

General Federation of Women's Clubs Start Move and Find Ready Support

A prize of $1,000 for a nation wide high school essay contest on the subject, "Why Should I Vote?" sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and approved by the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic national committees promises to give great impetus to the movement to educate American voters for the coming election, local women say.

At a recent meeting of the National Civic association, the contest was proposed by Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation; the plan was immediately approved and was met by John Hays Hammond, president of the Civic Federation, with the offer of the $1,000 prize.

Mrs. William R. Alvord, Detroit, chairman of the department of American citizenship of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is in charge of the organization of joint committees on citizenship consisting of representatives of local groups, in 500 of the largest cities of the country. "Indifference of the rank and file of American citizens toward the franchise is a serious menace to the upholding of our cherished American institutions," said Mrs. Alvord.

"In this crisis the General Federation of Women's Clubs, through its department of American citizenship, welcomes the opportunity to take the lead in arousing national interest in this vital subject through a high school essay contest, which will insure the interest of the younger generation the voter of tomorrow.

Seven million young women and men will be able to cast their first vote next November. What greater peace-time patriotic service can we render these young voters than to arouse in them the determination to vote and vote intelligently?"

MOVIE MAN FORFEITS CASH BOND OF $500

T. J. Ray Also Has Similar Amount Posted for Appearance Wednesday

A $500 bond posted by T. J. Ray, a director with the motion picture company which made a "home-talent" movie in Appleton several months ago, to insure his appearance in municipal court here to stand trial on a charge of taking indecent liberties with a local girl, 12 years old, was ordered forfeited Tuesday morning by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court when Ray failed to show up.

Abraham Sigman, Ray's attorney, filed an affidavit claiming Ray was in Philadelphia with his wife who was seriously ill and he couldn't leave her bedside. Mr. Sigman's explanation wasn't sufficient and he ordered the $500 to be confiscated. A plea for a postponement also was denied by Judge Berg.

Ray faces trial Wednesday for a similar charge brought by another Appleton girl, 12 years old. He has posted another $500 to insure his appearance for this trial and if he does not appear, it is very likely that bond will be confiscated also.

The charge against Ray is not dropped, however, although it is not yet determined what steps will be taken to dispose of the matter.

WATER REQUIREMENTS FOR CITY SHOWS GAIN

Appleton used six million more gallons of water in March than it did for the same month a year ago, according to the report of A. J. Hall, superintendent of the pumping station. Water treated last month totaled 58,500,000 gallons as compared with 52,500,000 gallons a year ago. The water used last month was 2,028,000 gallons or 3.4 per cent. A year ago with less water treated it was 3,270,000 gallons or 6.2 per cent.

FINE OSHKOSH MAN $25 FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

J. Bloechel, Oshkosh, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday afternoon when he pleaded guilty of reckless driving.

Bloechel was arrested Sunday afternoon by Sheriff Otto Zuchke on complaint of District Attorney John A. Londorf. Bloechel's car, occupied by four other young men, also said to be from Oshkosh, crashed into the rear of a car owned and driven by William Krueger, Appleton, on Highway 26 about three miles west of the city limits. The district attorney, who was driving to New London, saw the accident and called the sheriff and asked him to arrest Bloechel.

Krueger's car was thrown into the ditch and almost completely demolished. Neither Krueger or Edward Young, Appleton, another occupant of the car, were injured. Bloechel's car was only slightly damaged.

HEALTH BOARD TELLS ABOUT CITY'S NEED FOR SOCIAL WORKER

Mrs. Mable Shannon Addresses City Councilmen on Subject at Monday Meeting

Immediate steps to employ a trained social worker for the city were asked by the board of health Monday evening in an informal meeting with the city council. Mrs. Mable Shannon, one of the board members, was the principal speaker of the evening.

The board also asked the council to permit Judge F. V. Holmquist, and Miss Mary Hayes, Kaukauna, social worker, to address members at a meeting of the committee of the whole at the next formal council meeting. The meeting will be held Wednesday evening, May 2.

Several local cases in which a trained social case worker could have aided families or individuals, were related to the councilmen by Mrs. Shannon. One of the cases used as an example occurred a few days ago and the findings of Miss Hayes, working under the direction of the county judge, were told the aldermen.

A trained social case worker who could go into homes, study the situations and offer a solution for them, with the resultant savings in poor-aid, was the type worker asked by Mrs. Shannon. She showed in the case of the Appleton family under observation by the county judge and Miss Hayes, that probably most family troubles could be eliminated if there were someone to offer a budget plan and then see that it was carried out.

The board estimated that a trained social case worker would cost the city $2,000 a year and indicated that immediate action should be taken to employ the worker.

SPIRIT OF BREMEN IS REFLECTED IN ATLANTIC FLIGHT

City Has Sent Ships to Far Countries for More Than a Thousand Years

Washington — "The plane which crossed the Atlantic has fulfilled the spirit of Bremen," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. on the name-sake town.

"One of the three surviving free cities of the famous Hanseatic League, Bremen has sent ships to far countries far more than a thousand years. The airplane in taking the name of the home town of Baron von Huenefeld maintains the port's reputation in the new era of the air.

"From the blazed ceiling of the great meeting hall in Bremen's famous fifteenth century Rathaus, or town hall, hang reproductions of the brave galleons that made Bremen the New York of those days. The Bremen Senate in session in the Grosse Halle will probably order a model of the Bremen monoplane to hang beside the galleons.

"The spirit of Bremen has been emblazoned on the doors of the Haus Seefahrt, a guild or society of shipowners, merchants and sea captains. The guild's purpose, pursued since its organization in 1545, is to promote Bremen's shipping and provide a home for aged seafarers and for widows and orphans. Its emblazoned motto reads, 'Navigare necesse est, vivere non est necesse' (to travel abroad is necessary, to live is not necessary.)

"But the municipal emblem of Bremen is not such an adventurous bird as its namesake airplane. A Saxon tube, driven inland from the coast up the Weser River, saw a hen with her brood of chickens sunning herself on a sand hill. The yellow hen looked so contented, that the tribe was inspired to locate on the sand hill and thus Bremen began sometime before Charlemagne. Bremen, still uses the symbol of the yellow hen.

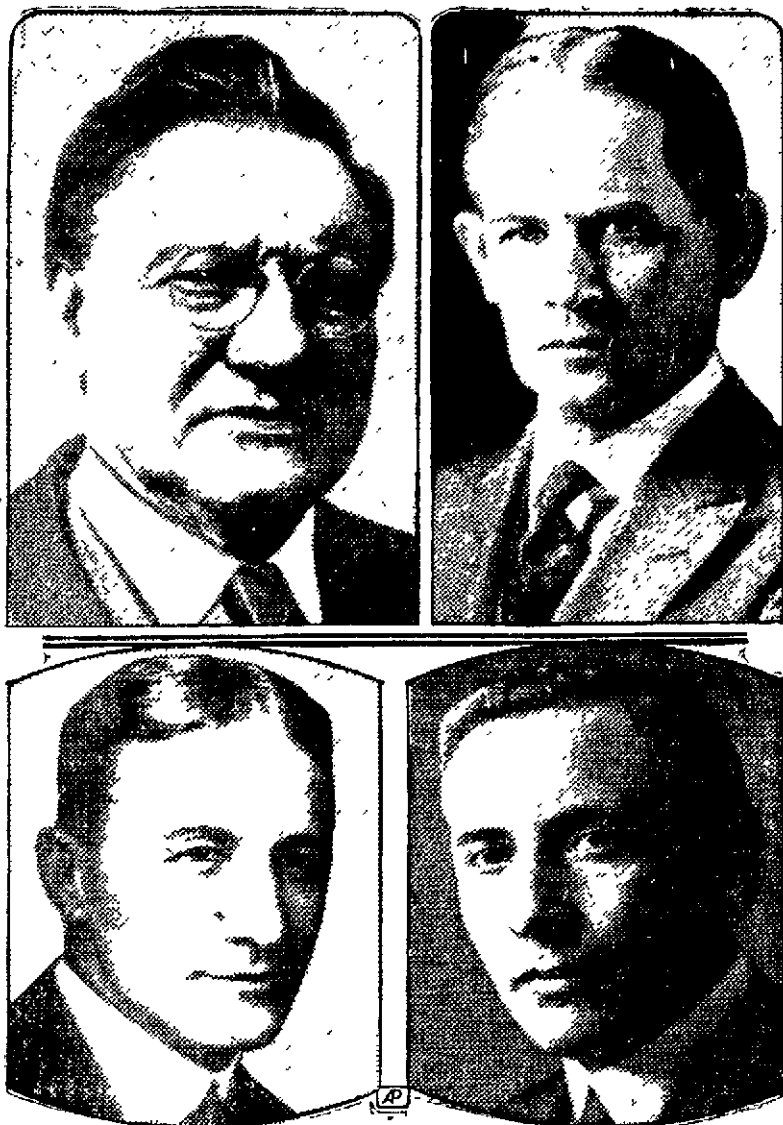

"Modern Bremen, a free, self-governing town of 294,000 people living on 99 square miles of municipal domain, has reverently clung to the monuments of her medieval magnificence, the Rathaus, her churches, the elaborate guild houses and several fifteenth century private homes. These are all in Altstadt, which is the yolk of modern Bremen. The zigzag moat which guarded the Hanseatic metropolis on the land side has become a parkway; the walls torn down left space for an encircling boulevard. In the picturesque moat swim ducks who grow fat and lazy on food tossed to them by nursemaids and their charges. Hovering over the winding waterway are huge wings of windmills, which, if not necessary, are certainly typical of the Hanover lowlands in which the city lies.

TRAVELER'S GATEWAY

"In addition to the town and artificial harbor on the Weser, Bremen also owns Bremerhaven, 40 miles away at the mouth of the river. From Bremerhaven, sail the liners that feed the city's foreign trade; carrying immigrants and German goods to America, bringing back cotton, tobacco and tourists. Indeed, Bremen is the traveler's gateway to central Europe. One of the great German shipping concerns makes its headquarters at Bremen although the sister Hanseatic town of Hamburg is Germany's premier port.

"One of Bremen's prized possessions is its Burger Park, obtained many years ago in a strange manner. Countess Emma was a liberal benefactress to good causes so when citizens asked her for a grant of pasture land she offered as much as a man could walk around in an hour. "Why not a day?" Emma's heir, Duke Bernhard, said sarcastically. "Very well, a day," responded the Countess. The Duke, alarmed that the point had been turned against him, demanded the privilege of selecting the man. He chose a cripple. Aided by the encouragement of townsmen the cripple painfully crawled all one day and his route is said to be the border of Burger Park.

HOOVER AGAINST FAVORITE SON

The first clear-cut test of strength between Herbert Hoover and a favorite son in the republican presidential race will come in the Indiana primaries May 8, with U. S. Senator James E. Watson (upper left) seeking the state's 33 delegates against Hoover. Evans Woolen (upper right) is unopposed for the democratic delegation. In a warm senate race Senator Arthur Robinson (lower left) has two adversaries for the republican nomination, one of them Atty. Gen. Arthur Gilliom (lower right).

"Wine, valued at $1,250,000 per glass, which does not cost that much, has contributed to the fame of Bremen. Under the Rathaus is the Ratskeller, a municipal restaurant and in the restaurant are gigantic casks containing the valuable wine. The oldest of it was made in 1653—other tuns contain vintages of 1726. It is estimated that if the original cost of a glass of Hock was 'Apostles Wine' had been put in a bank in 1673 at compound interest the sum would now be $1,250,000. As it is the wine costs the equivalent of 35 cents per glass.

"One of the side rooms has a large rose painted on the ceiling. Secret meetings of the Senate were held in the Rose Room and so Bremen claims to be mother of the term 'sub rosa.'

"Bremen has an additional link with North America. In the days when the parish of the archbishop of Bremen spread over north Germany and all Scandinavia an official of the

FAVORITE SON AND HOOVER PUTTING ON BATTLE IN INDIANA

First Clear Cut Test of Strength Will Be Made at Hoosier Polls

Indianapolis—(AP)—With the death of United States Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio the Indiana presidential preference primary on May 8 will offer the first clear-cut test of strength between Herbert Hoover and an opponent in the embroiled race for the republican presidential nomination.

Had Willis not died the test would have come in Ohio, for the secretary of commerce had entered the two-eye primary too in an attempt to wrest delegates from a favorite son, United States Senator James E. Watson, Hoosier David Harum of politics, with an admitted grip on the home folks, is Hoover's opponent for Indiana's 33 delegates, and he has carried on a campaign in vigorous fashion.

National issues in Indiana have trooped across the stage against a backdrop of spectacular scenery set up by one of the hottest primary campaigns in Hoosier history.

The primary offers the first popular expression since the recent turbulence in Indiana politics, marked by indictments of public officials and charges of wide-spread corruption.

The Ku Klux Klan has been a factor, especially since the latest statements of D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana Klan head. From his life cell Stephenson has bared, he says, the true story of Klan efforts to control public officials.

"Stephensonism" is a term that has been coined by Democrats to characterize the Republican regime.

The Democratic national picture, to all appearances, is quiet and peaceful. There is no opposition to Evans Woolen, Indianapolis banker and candidate for the presidential nomination. Thomas Taggart, Woolen's sponsor and a shrewd political sage, has declared that Woolen will be no second choice at the national convention.

United States Senator Arthur R. Robinson, seeking renomination on the Republican ticket, faces two opponents—Attorney General Arthur L. Cullom and Solon J. Carter. Gilliom has crusaded against the Anti-Saloon League and the Klan, and Carter is a younger Republican, a world war veteran.

Democrats, confidently asserting that this is their "year of years" in Indiana, have placed three candidates in the field for the senatorial nomination—Albert Stump, Walter Myers and L. William Curry, all Indianapolis attorneys.

Ten Republicans and eight Democrats seek the gubernatorial nomination, and the crowding for places goes on down through the state ticket.

Earnings in the Telephone Business

This is the second of a series of advertisements taken from a recent statement of Policy of the Bell System by Walter S. Gifford, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

"EARNINGS must be sufficient to assure the best possible telephone service at all times and to assure the continued financial integrity of the business. Earnings that are less than adequate must result in telephone service that is something less than the best possible. Earnings in excess of these requirements must either be spent for the enlargement and improvement of the service furnished or the rates charged for the service must be reduced. This is fundamental in the policy of the management.

"The margin of safety in earnings is only a small percentage of the rate charged for service, but that we may carry out our ideals and aims it is essential that this margin be kept adequate. Cutting it too close can only result in the long run in deterioration of service while the temporary financial benefit to the telephone user would be practically negligible."

The Wisconsin Telephone Company is one of 24 Associated Companies, which, with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, comprise the Bell System.
